SPRING ANNOUNCEMENTS 1928

A COMPLETE INDEX of the new books (February to June) entered by author, title and series

The publishers' advertisements with descriptive notes are alphabetically arranged for easy reference

Bookbinding for Bookbuyers

The quarterly indexes of forthcoming books enable booksellers to quickly fill orders

WHEN a customer asks for an unfamiliar title, it is usually a current publication just receiving advance notice. The customer knows the author and title, (often-times only the title), rarely the name of the publisher or the price.

THE quarterly indexes supplied by The Publishers' Weekly are the means of locating the publisher, quoting the price and securing the order. Every dealer in books should keep this series on the reference desk.

LOOK first in the current index for the author's name, if known. Author entry is in bold face type and more complete in details than the title entry.

IF author's name is not known or, perhaps, received incorrectly, try the title index. Titles are listed under the first or principal word.

IF not a book of the current season the previous issues of the Announcement Indexes will locate it.

THESE indexes include the books of all publishers from whom data can be had after a systematic canvass.

THE Spring Index, repeats from the Mid-Winter Index the important titles of January and February, and includes all publication for March, April, May and June.

Valuable descriptive matter on featured titles will be found in the publishers' advertising pages which has been arranged alphabetically by publisher for convenient reference use. These descriptive notes provide valuable selling talk for salesmen.

Forth from the Presses

MONTHS of preparation go into the announcements of a Spring publishing season. Books that authors conceived years ago, or began to write months ago, are now ready for their public. Volumes that publishers have long labored on and slowly developed, are at last out from the manufacturing department and ready for shipping. Books that will influence history, that will change tides of thought, that will continue great traditions, are on their way to their destiny. There is something thrilling that every bookseller feels about a Spring Announcement number.

Where was the Great American Desert? When was cattle raising introduced to the Middle West? Why were cattle branded, and how? What caused the great feud between the homesteaders and the cattle kings, involving U. S. Cavalry?

ANSWER these questions and you have a glimpse of the authentic background upon which Clarence Hawkes has written his masterpiece:

The Flying Horse

By OLGA and KASIMIS KOVALSKY

Illustrated in color by
WANDA PETRUNKEVITCH

The colorful imagination of the Russian artist finds vivid expression in this fascinating exotic folk story of "the little hunch-backed horse, who could fly above mountains, rivers and seas, yet having no wings at all."

Delightful text and glowing pictures tell and visualize the story.
Size  $7\frac{1}{2} \times 10\frac{1}{2}$ . Price, \$1.75

Miss Angelina Adorable

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Illustrated in color by
LAURA JANET SCOTT

Discontented with dull home conditions, Angelina, "the adorable doll," and her little mistress, seek adventure in a deserted house. Here they meet "Clocky," the restless time-keeper, and with the brown hen, the lame chicken, Pete, the dog, and Susy, the cow, they seek Utopia in a nearby field. Radiant color and charming text lead the reader joyously on to the end of the story.

Size  $5\frac{5}{8} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ . Price, \$1.50

PATCHES:

A Wyoming Cow Pony

Out of the North he came, in a whirl of blinding dust, a three months' old colt—fleeing for his life from a vicious black stallion—a "killer"! Straight to where Hank Brodie, foreman of the Crooked Creek Ranch, rested his mount, the terrified colt plunged, trailed by the mad monster. The cowboy barely escaped the onslaught—but he shot the stallion and kept the colt. So Patches is introduced in a story teeming with action and thrill from start to finish.

Not only is this the best story Clarence Hawkes has written, but it is told in the most beautiful book that has ever borne his name.

Popular large size,  $7 \times 9\frac{1}{2}$ , with remarkably fine full page illustrations, and many smaller pictures interspersed throughout the text. Printed on excellent paper, and splendidly bound, "Patches" is a "Quality" production—a book to own and treasure.

Price, $2.50

She Walks in Beauty

by Dawn Powell

Sinclair Lewis, Sherwood Anderson and Edgar Lee Masters have given us in different forms photographic and vivid pictures of middle western life as viewed by men with a discerning eye. In "She Walks in Beauty", Dawn Powell adds something to this, for with a woman's intuition and subtlety of feeling she somehow creates characters with whom we intimately associate ourselves. Few readers will escape a misty eye or a catch in the throat occasioned by its authentic sentiment. $2.50

OTHER FICTION

In Condensed Form

THE nib of the matter as to any new book is in the short paragraph which the publisher writes about his new books to accompany his spring announcements. Every way to clear description and suggestive analysis is invoked to make those few words carry to the handler of books, bookseller, librarian, or critic, a clear idea of the real nature of the book and its reason for being. Why was the book written, for what purpose, why does the publisher believe there is a need for it? That the advertisement tries to express in a few words.

in the Company of the Arts

Advertisements are often judged by the company they keep. Book advertising in The Chicago Daily News is placed not only in the company of other good books but of the arts as well.

The Wednesday Book Page is a part of the special midweek features section of The Daily News, a section devoted to news and intelligent comment on music, drama, movies, painting, sculpture, society, travel and home affairs.

This weekly guide to the finer things of life has an especial appeal to that class of readers who buy books.

Your advertising in this section shares a reader interest built up by the writings of competent authorities on literature and kindred subjects, with the buying custom it sustains.

Confidence in Clode

THERE are some firms that seem to hold the public trust and admiration decidedly more than others. And the man in far off western Canada who said, "If a firm like Clode advises it, I shall take it with my eyes shut, knowing that everything will be right in every sense."

If that is not buying "a pig in a poke," then nothing is. But the Canadian's faith was not misplaced when he spoke of Edward J. Clode. Probably thousands in New York would say the same—hard boiled as the old town is.

Just now the firm is putting out a new book by Faith Baldwin, and remembering the saying about the firm, one picked it up in reference to others!

And, such a book. . . thrilling, true to life, with a twist that makes one take it as a real, everyday experience, with glamour to tide it over the harder parts. The love in it—the work—the ever looking forward to a great finale. . . Rosalie's Career is a gem.

Faith Baldwin has certainly made a hit, and again the old Canadian will say: "If it's Clode's, well, that's all there is to it. Send me five hundred."

PRESENT-DAY DILEMMAS IN RELIGION

Being Substantially the Cole Lectures Delivered Before Vanderbilt University

By CHARLES W. GILKEY, D.D.

Pastor: Hyde Park Baptist Church, Chicago.

Professor: University of Chicago.

Author: "Jesus and Our Generation."

Here are six messages of a scholarly Christian who has traveled widely and observed wisely the important events for humanity and history which have been crowded into our time, and their relation to religion. How, through the dilemmas they have occasioned, mankind can be led into richer spiritual fellowship uniting all ages and both sexes, of differing theological concepts and temperamental characteristics, the author frankly and keenly discusses.

This book contains much that is fresh. It is the work of a mature mind, richly expressing itself on subjects that concern all who seek the freedom that comes with truth. $1.50

CROCKETT AND BOWIE GIVE
LIVES AT ALAMOBloodthirsty Santa Anna
Rides to Death

In "Sam Houston—Colossus in Buckskin," by George Creel, the Alamo is fought over and Santa Anna rides to his death. The life of Sam Houston gives him a place in actual history which few men hold in legend. Giant of frame, woodsman, Indian fighter and also peacemaker, driven from a brilliant political career by unjust scandal only to return when Texas needed him, Sam Houston added that great state to the Union almost single-handed and, at last, died with little to leave to his family except homely advice.

Sam Houston

The story of Sam Houston follows rapidly one of the most varied and vivid careers in American history. It is filled with his overwhelming personality, his eccentricities, his primitive dignity and humor and his amazing exploits. Its pages re-live the violent days of territorial expansion in the West and show him immense and prophetic, a leader such as has seldom appeared in the ranks of any nation.

OFFICIAL LONDON
"QUEX"

"Quex," the story of the rise of a poor English boy to the peerage and the position of an Empire-builder, is making official London squirm, while literary London laughs and applauds. How Artemas Quex made his fortune is told graphically and truthfully by Douglas Jerrold, whose book is filled with romance and suspense, at the same time being a barbed satire of business, morals and society in present-day London.

MODERN PIRATES
PUT TO SEA

What is believed to be the greatest buccaneering exploit since Morgan's sack of Panama was thwarted recently by Paul Loring, hero of Edison Marshall's latest book "The Far Call." It was Loring, oddly enough, who organized the piratical expedition, but, becoming attached to a young woman named Hilda, he turned against his own crew and fought them in a desperate battle. Edison Marshall is a master of plots and "The Far Call" is an amazing account of modern adventure.

BanksCount Corti Tells Story of Rothschilds

The story of the Rothschilds and their rise to almost incredible wealth and power is told in "The Rise of the House of Rothschild" by Count Egon Caesar Corti. To assemble the material for this book required three years. At the end of that time, Count Corti, who is already a celebrated historian and biographer, possessed so many valuable documents that his desk resembled the secret archives of a foreign power.

The Rothschilds held strings on which kings and emperors danced. They pitted nation against nation—for profit. The publication of their story is one of the most exciting historical events in decades. It was hailed in Germany as the book of the year. In the week that followed its purchase by Cosmopolitan, twenty publishers cabled bids for it. "The Rise of the House of Rothschild" will undoubtedly create a sensation in America.

STEPSON OF R. L. S.
WRITES MYSTERY TALE

Lloyd Osbourne, stepson of Robert Louis Stevenson, and collaborator with him on "The Wrecker" has recently written a mystery story entitled "Not To Be Opened." The perplexing and breath-taking incidents in the story are heightened in effect by the author's humor. On the letter which is "not to be opened" hinge life and death, a fortune and a career.

DISCUSSES EASTERN PHILOSOPHY

Has Seen "Miracles"

L. Adams Beck, who is also known as E. Barrington, world-traveller, novelist, student of oriental mysticism, and herself a convert to Yoga, reveals in "The Way of Power" the course to be followed by an individual wishing to learn mental transcendence, and she also records numerous "miracles" performed by that force in her presence and the presence of others.

Noble a Pretender

Was Blacksmith's Son and Pirate

A titled Englishman whose life story is a travesty on that of the ordinary heroic adventurer was found recently to be a pretender. Actually the son of a blacksmith born in the time of King James, he made his way to fame and fortune by roguery, piracy, and every other means unbecoming to a gentleman. His life story will be revealed shortly in "The Sword Peddler" by Thomas Grant Springer—as entertaining, shrewd and laughable an adventure satire as has been seen in many a long year, say those who have seen advance copies.

Shall Woman Cross New Horizons?

Adela Rogers St. Johns Says "Yes"

In a statement made to-day, Adela Rogers St. Johns, the "prophet and critic of the rising generation," stated that she believed that it was the privilege of every woman "to test life with the open-mindedness and social freedom of men." How otherwise will a girl recognize her mate, or choose her career? she asks. To show the strength of her contention she has written a realistic, gripping story of the life of a free-born woman, entitled "The Single Standard."

HISTORIAN TO THE GYPSIES

"The Story of the Gypsies," by Konrad Bercovici, who has taken the road and lived with the gypsies, is one of the latest additions to the Cosmopolitan spring list. The history which lies behind these people, who are known to us only as bizarre and colorful folk appearing from nowhere at our roadsides to dance and laugh around evening fires and to tell our fortunes for a piece of silver, is a fascinating tale. More information on this vastly interesting work will be forthcoming.

EXTRA!

Continent Vanishes Beneath Onrushing Seas

A Few Survivors Believed to be Left on "Islands"

Special to Cosmopolitan. June 2nd—A flood which destroyed Europe and left only a few "islands" standing above its waters is reported in "Deluge" by S. Fowler Wright. Cosmopolitan will publish the story of S. Fowler Wright in the near future. He tells vividly of the coming of the flood, the panic of the people, and the romantic life of one man and two women who survived it and worked out their unusual destiny together on the ruins of civilization. This astounding tale made Mr. Wright a celebrity overnight in Europe—which, the editors are happy to announce, was flooded only in his brilliant book "Deluge."

THE DISCOVERY OF GENIUS IS THE SPICE OF PUBLISHING

THERE are best sellers on our Spring list. There are books by authors whose followings run into tens of thousands. Some of these you are already selling. CLAIRE AMBLER by Booth Tarkington is at the top of all the lists. Booksellers and reviewers agree that WINTERSMOON is the greatest Hugh Walpole novel in years. And there are new books by W. Somerset Maugham, Kathleen Norris, Christopher Morley, Milt Gross, M. R. Werner, William McFee, James Oliver Curwood, Coningsby Dawson, Philip Gibbs, Frank L. Packard, Edgar Wallace, Mary Roberts Rinehart. These are books we can count on for large sales.

But every great author has to be discovered: and the publisher's keenest pleasure is to discover the first big book of a young writer—to see it go over—to see his own enthusiasm reflected in the reviews, his hopes justified in the sale. In the following list you will find names you know along with names you are going to recognize. Booksellers, critics, and the public have backed us on two brilliant novels by young men: OLD FATHER OF WATERS by Alan Le May and THE OLD NICK by F. W. Bronson. There are more like these among our forthcoming books.

Pernicious Anemia

Beaumont S. Cornell

A complete review of the literature, coupled with his own clinical and laboratory studies, has enabled Dr. Cornell to present a clear picture of pernicious anemia. He traces the evolution of the conception of the disease from Combe's first description of it in 1822 down to the present. Though written for the professional physician, the book contains a great deal for the interested layman. There is a complete discussion of the differential diagnosis, the pathological data, and the geographical distribution of the disease. The successful "liver" therapy of Minot and Murphy is presented in detail, with diets.

8vo. xv, 311 pp. $4.00

The Huguenots of Colonial South Carolina

Arthur H. Hirsch

After extensive study of original materials, public and private, the author has written an account of the political, economic, and religious life of the early Huguenot families of South Carolina. But more than this, his book is an illuminating study of one of the important phases of foreign immigration into the American Colonies. The story is told simply and directly,—sympathetically, but without prejudice. It is sponsored by the Huguenot Society of South Carolina. 3 maps and 19 illustrations. 8vo. xv, 338 pp. $5.00

The New England Clergy and the American Revolution

Alice M. Baldwin

This book should appeal to readers interested in the history of the American Revolution, in the development of characteristic American political doctrines and their relations to earlier English thought, and in the society and culture that prevailed in New England in the eighteenth century. It shows the large part played by the clergy in giving tone, temper and direction to the spirit in New England that culminated in the rebellion against the mother country; and also reveals the influence of the clergy in framing the constitutions of the New England states after independence was asserted.

8vo. $3.50

Church and State in Mexico 1822-1857 William H. Calcott

This is the story, clearly and straightforwardly told, of the democratic movement in Mexico in the first half of the nineteenth century. The stirring events of that period were closely related to the war between the United States and Mexico, and that movement constitutes the background of conditions in Mexico today. The book is accurate, authoritative, and unbiased, and throws considerable light on the present crisis.

8vo. 357 pp. $4.00

The Social Philosophy of William Morris

Anna A. von Helmholtz-Phelan

William Morris was not only a poet who could describe himself as a "dreamer of dreams," and a craftsman who sought to bring real beauty into the common practical details of living, but also a man who, believing that the industrial order of his time (and ours) prevented men from attaining their true happiness through work, developed a philosophy and undertook "with unflinching courage and sublime self-effacement" a program for the improvement of social conditions. Dr. Phelan's book aims to show Morris' development from artist to socialist and from socialist to an independent, though unsuccessful, reformer.

It is interesting to note that FACE VALUE, which was published last July, has had a better sale during January and February than it did during the first two months that it was published. IRON AND SMOKE is reported throughout the trade as one of the three best sellers with "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" and "Claire Ambler." These ten books are all in our advertising program for the month of March.

On March 20th we will publish in the new American Everyman edition THE SEA AND THE JUNGLE by H. M. Tomlinson and UNDER FIRE by Barbusse. You will remember that the American edition of the Everyman's Library has new illustrated jackets and a new, individual, attractive binding on each book. The price is still 80¢.

Regarding the Literary Guild, - as booksellers we, too, have never displayed, listed, advertised, or promoted the sales of any book on the Literary Guild List. There is nothing personal regarding this stand. We simply feel that their methods are detrimental to the trade and to this firm as bookseller and publisher.

Very truly yours,

John Macrae, Jr.
Sales Manager.

SEEING RUSSIA. By E. M. Newman

The unprejudiced story of a great human experiment, told in breezy narrative, illustrated with hundreds of superb photographs. Mr. Newman is the first and only traveler in Soviet Russia who has been allowed to photograph whatever he pleased, and to take his pictures out of the country absolutely uncensored. He takes the reader all over Russia, from Petrograd to the Crimea, from the Volga Valley to the mountain Republics of the Caucasus, visiting the more important cities, and chatting all the way upon the human-interest aspects of the things seen. Uniform with the same author's "Seeing Italy."

8vo. Cloth. With 300 photographic illustrations. $5.00, net.

THOUGHT-CONTROL IN EVERYDAY LIFE. By James Alexander

A practical, sincere, and helpful book, by an experienced psychologist, in which the author tells in interesting and understandable language how to control the mind and all its activities in the rush and stress of modern life and thus promote daily happiness and business efficiency.

12mo. Cloth. About 280 pages. $2.00, net.

ROBB'S PATENT ESSENTIALS. By John F. Robb, LL.B., LL.M., M.P.L.

New revised and enlarged edition. The standard in its field—for laymen and attorneys alike. Gives essential facts regarding the protection of patents, how to secure them, what is patentable, and the procedure of the Patent Office. This new edition is completely revised with considerable material added including a new chapter giving a synopsis of the modifications of patent laws by 1927 Congressional Enactments; Amendments to the rules of practice of the Patent Office largely putting into effect the 1927 changes in the patent statutes; also the 1927 Amended Patent Statutes.

Crown 8vo. Law Buckram, $5.00, net.

Recent Publications

Entirely New (1928) Edition

Etiquette—(The Blue Book of Social Usage).

By Emily Post

The first edition of Mrs. Post's "Etiquette" went through seventeen printings. The intense interest in the subject, as evidenced by thousands of letters sent to the author, and the many changes that have occurred in the social amenities in recent years due to the pace of modern life quite as much as the iconoclasm of the modern generation, have created the necessity for a new edition. So many changes were made in the original volume, and so much new material was added in both text and illustration as to make practically a new work of this present edition. Crown 8vo. Cloth. Illustrated. $4.00, net.

Seeing Italy.

By E. M. Newman

A breezy description of what, from the tourist's point of view, is worth seeing in Italy, spiced with anecdotes of the author's experience during years of travel in that country and coupled with practical advice about hotels, restaurants, taxicabs, etc., in every Italian town of importance. 8vo. Cloth. 298 illustrations, $5.00, net.

Your Growing Child.

By H. Addington Bruce

Practical suggestions to parents on the many new and difficult problems involved in rearing and training children in this era of jazz, radio and motor cars. The book will prove an illuminating guide, for fathers and mothers, through a psychological jungle previously uncharted. Crown 8vo. Cloth, $2.50, net.

Ireland and the Foundations of Europe.

By Benedict Fitzpatrick

A companion volume to the author's "Ireland and the Making of Britain." Mr. Fitzpatrick has devoted many years to searching and studying the records of different European countries in his work of tracing the ancient greatness of Ireland and the spread of Irish learning by Irish scholars throughout Europe in the so-called Dark Ages. 8vo. Cloth, $4.00, net.

NOVELS of DISTINCTION

We almost had tea with that charming Southern lady, the author of BLACK APRIL, when she was in New York the week of Lincoln's birthday. Unhappily, like the telephone directory, we are chained to our desk. It just happened that the first samples of our Dollar Edition of BLACK APRIL had arrived that day, and so we sent up a copy instead of ourself. We understand that there were many soft Southern Ohs and Ahs when it arrived. All we can say is that we have given it a dress worthy of the great story itself. BLACK APRIL is without benefit of police court in Boston, you know. Can this be one of the reasons why we have been getting such fine orders for it from everywhere else—especially from the South? But, no. It would still remain a great book, even if the Cabots had never talked with God and received, in return, a seven year's plague of censorship.

"This (speaking of Hamlin Garland's A SON OF THE MIDDLE BORDER) was one of the enduring books"—we were just about to say—"that we had in mind when the idea of NOVELS OF DISTINCTION was being evolved." But we caught ourself just in time. It isn't, of course, a novel at all. Yet in our humble estimation the publication of this American "Growth of the Soil" justifies all the thought and labor that have gone into the creation of the Dollar Line. You will be selling it year in, year out when flashier and more ephemeral novels have been forgotten. If this fine book in its handsome dress, doesn't prove to be one of the high dollar spots of the year, then perhaps we had better have stayed in the hardware business, after all.

"Three Black Pennys" was one of the best received of last year's offerings in NOVELS OF DISTINCTION. Mr. Hergesheimer and most of his admirers feel that BALISAND—colorful picture of those hard drinking, hard living, but gallant and flaming days of the new American Republic—next to "Three Black Pennys", is his most artistic and permanent success. The format of BALISAND is the same as "Three Black Pennys."

Somerset Maugham! What a grand name

to add to the List of N of D authors! Author of "Rain", "Of Human Bondage" and that powerful analysis of the naked soul of a man turned brute in order to fulfill a dream—THE MOON AND SIXPENCE. It's on the March list, bound and jacketed in a way that gives the atmosphere of the hot sun and green loveliness of the tropics.

At least three of our travelers have in a chip-on-the-shoulderish manner gone out of their way to tell us that the best title on the March N of D list (two of them were even so iconoclastic as to pronounce it the best of the year so far) is Margaret Leech's penetrating story of modern marriage TIN WEDDING. We have a suspicion that many of these salesmens' good friends in the trade have had something to do with the forming of this opinion which they have so freely and forcefully handed us. Well, we are very proud to have TIN WEDDING among NOVELS OF DISTINCTION. If you care to file this page away, you will find (and it won't be so long, either) complete justification for our prediction that Margaret Leech will become one of the truly great literary figures in this country.

We have received so much favorable comment upon the jackets of A SON OF THE MIDDLE BORDER, BLACK APRIL, MOON AND SIXPENCE and TIN WEDDING, that it is only fair that you should know that they are all the work of that well-known artist, Ernest Walker, who did a series of paintings for a campaign of full page advertisements last year for Duco in the Saturday Evening Post.

The outstanding sensation (and O. Henry would tell you always to wind up even such a thing as a column with a sensation) in the Dollar Book Market as we go to press is the lovely G & D edition of Bruce Barton's THE MAN NOBODY KNOWS. It is selling like hot cross buns on Good Friday.

Forth from the Presses

MONTHS of preparation go into the announcements of a Spring publishing season. Books that authors conceived years ago, or began to write months ago, are now ready for their public. Volumes that publishers have long labored on and slowly developed, are at last out from the manufacturing department and ready for shipping. Books that will influence history, that will change tides of thought, that will continue great traditions, are on their way to their destiny. There is something thrilling that every bookseller feels about a Spring Announcement number.

DOLLY MADISON, THE NATION'S HOSTESS

By ELIZABETH LIPPINCOTT DEAN

Illustrated from Many Photographs. Decorated Cover. $3.00.

The biography of one of America's most charming and notable women covers with vividness and accuracy the period from 1768 to 1850. We meet George and Martha Washington, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Alexander Hamilton, Aaron Burr, Daniel Webster, Robert Fulton, S. F. B. Morse, Washington Irving, the Beau Brummell of the day, and the great Lafayette. It presents a new approach to this period of American history.

THE LONE STAR OF CARBAJAL

The Story of a California Girl in the Historic '50's

By C. SHARPE

Picture Jacket in Full Color and Illustrations by HAROLD CUE. $1.75

The scene of this story is near Los Angeles, when that city was a small village. The ranch of the proud Carbajal family was near the old San Fernando mission and not far from Tejon Cañon, the stronghold of the highway robber, Joaquin Murrieta, whose deeds are still legendary in California. When Marta Carbajal and her twin brother, Pedro, were born, a bright star shone which by the prophecy of Don Rufio, would rise again to guide the girl to her destiny. Fifteen years later, Don Rufio and the Star of the House of Carbajal came again into her life. Then followed a succession of exciting events. A dramatic climax is reached when Marta escapes from Murrieta and rides a spirited horse into the midst of a gay ball at the Governor's mansion, to give the warning that saves Los Angeles from an attack from the band of outlaws. A story of mystery, daring, and romance.

THREE GATES

By EDNA A. BROWN

With Picture Jacket, End Papers, and Illustrations in Full Color by

ANTOINETTE INGLIS. $1.50

The fence before Pauline Winsor's home had three gates, which gave the house its name. Polly lived there, with Mother and Grandma and Uncle Jack; with Kerry Crumb, the Irish terrier, and the pussy, Mittens. The story tells what Polly did at home and at school, how she went chestnutting with her friend Carola, and helped sell balloons at the street fair, and was "Heidi" in the library play. For girls from six to ten.

THE BOY ELECTRICIAN NEW EDITION

Practical Plans for Electrical Toys and Apparatus, with an Explanation of the Principles of Every-Day Electricity. $2.50

By ALFRED P. MORGAN

No sooner was the original edition of this book published than its superiority over all other books of its kind was recognized. It has maintained this position ever since, but the tremendous development of the radio has made it necessary to revise an important part of the book and bring it up to date, as only Mr. Morgan could do. So well presented and so attractive is this really great book that it will be an education for any one, of any age, to have it.

New Popular Edition

SPRING FICTION

The public likes vigorous stories—stories that radiate ACTION. All McClurg novels are selected with that in mind, therefore, they are sure sellers.

Ken the Courageous

By Robert Ames Bennet

After the fashion of a good cook, Bennet has spiced his story with shooting forays, humor, intrigue, mystery and romance. He has made another hit! Price $2.00

* * *

The Master Mind of Mars

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Another great Martian story! The most fantastical story since Jules Verne's "A Trip To The Moon" is the only way to describe it. Packed chock full of adventure and popular science. Hair-raising episodes seem to tumble right over each other in endless profusion—they come so quickly. Price $2.00

* * *

Bloody Ground

By Oscar J. Friend

Another rapid fire Western yarn by the author of "The Bullet Eater," "The Round-Up," and other frontier successes. Friend is known for good, entertaining, thrilling fiction. But BLOODY GROUND is something more—it is a saga of the Old West. Price $2.00

* * *

Bravo Jim

By W. D. Hoffman

Hoffman is a rising star on the horizon of Western fiction, one whose work has already stamped him as a master of his craft. He brings again the smell of burning gunpowder to the nostrils, he clouds the air with mystery and makes the blood tingle with the thrill of the chase—that is BRAVO JIM, a story that is vibrant with the pulse of Life. Price $2.00

* * *

The "Killer's" Protégé

By Robert J. Horton

This is a story that has something more than Strength, something more than Force: the compelling influence of both. It is overflowing with ACTION. We, personally, endorse it. We believe it to be destined for great popularity. Price $2.00

Establishing New Standards of Value =====
===== in Better Books for Children

¶MCLOUGHLIN BROS., INC. celebrate their Hundredth anniversary with the "Centennial Line" of illustrated books for children. Unrivalled in quality of text, art work and color printing these books will find a ready sale in every class of book store.

¶No publications of greater excellence for children of two to ten years are available from any source. They should not be confused with the common type of "toy books," as these new McLoughlin issues represent the genius of nationally known artists famous for their interpretation of childhood.

SHAPED BOOKS

¶Observe TIMOTHY TODDLES—he is one of eight equally delightful and appealing cherubs who grace the colorful covers of "THE TODDLES SERIES"—four Toddles Boys' books and four Toddles Girls' books—with quality pictures on every page and stories told in graceful rhyme.

¶Each book retails for a meagre 15 cents—and at that the dealer's profit is liberal.

¶The TODDLES BOOKS are also nicely boxed, four in a box to retail at 50 cents a box.

¶It is a pleasure to introduce PEEK-A-BOO BETTY to the book trade. She, with three equally charming sisters and four brothers represents the PEEK-A-BOO SERIES of eight titles. Each is as colorful as Betty, and every page which they cover has a three-color picture and story in verse. These books retail for 25 cents each; or may be obtained four titles handsomely boxed retailing for $1.00 a box.

¶MARY LOU AND DOLLY TOO—this euphonic title, is one of a series of four child-delight books called the "Playtime Series." New in text and typography, with beautifully colored illustrations, these books, printed on linen, are ultra-modern examples of what can be done by intelligent planning and skilled craftsmen in the production of untearable cloth books. Astonishing values at 50 cents each.

Children of the Rich and of the Poor Start Life's Lessons **=====
===== at a Common Point—"A-B-C" and "1-2-3"

KIDDIES' NUMBER BOOK

¶A beautiful creation as a picture book, and its pictures and rhymes teach the first steps in number in an unforgettable manner. Louise Tessin, who designed its delightful pages, is one of the Pacific Coast's best known artists.

A-B-C OF HAPPY PLAYTIME

¶Dorothy Hope Smith has won fame as a painter of children's portraits and as an illustrator of child subjects. It required all the persuasiveness commanded by Mr. Clark, Jr., the McLoughlin editor to induce Mrs. D. H. S. Barlow to apply her talent to so simple an assignment as an A-B-C Book. But—when the work was finished, she was so pleased that she dedicated it to her son. That's how good this book is! Every page is in beautiful, modern color treatment with picture subjects of present day child life that children delight in studying. Great, big colored letters and crisp, clever word-pictures provide just enough text to teach each letter of the alphabet and common words in which it is used.

A-B-C OF OBJECTS

¶Carefully planned and designed to serve the double purpose of interesting the child and teaching the alphabet, this "A-B-C" book appeals to children and to parents who have children to teach. Rhoda Chase for the art work was a happy choice, for her strong, glowing color treatment on every page has been productive of one of the most artistic A-B-C books ever published. This also has large colored letters which begin the names of the objects illustrated.

¶The three foregoing titles are available on linen with limp covers, to retail for \$1.00; and on the best of smooth finish paper with picture board covers to retail for 50 cents. Size, 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ x11 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

"Beauty, the new Tool of Industry" has never been more effectively applied than in the production of McLoughlin's "Centennial Line."

Let Pictures Tell the Story and It Will Not Be Forgotten ==

¶The first two books on this page were "made to order." In no other way could they boast that authenticity so imperatively demanded by the critical child mind.

AVIATION BOOK

¶Here are faithful picture reproductions of all successful types of sky-going craft from the first balloon, 1783, to the present day. Romance is added to history by many large colored illustrations, showing intrepid aviators in military action and in flight over sea and land.

¶This is truly a "picture story book," and its perusal will leave the young reader well informed as to what has been done toward the conquest of the air.

RAILROAD BOOK

¶The great Railway Systems of the world contributed to the success of this book by supplying photographs of their equipment—the earliest types and the most modern. Here are shown the locomotives used on the leading railways of Europe, and the most advanced models of steam and electric engines of our own systems. Interesting scenes of railway construction, the round house, repair shops, taking water at full speed, the flight of the Limited, help to complete this picture romance of the rails. Fine color effects prevail throughout the book.

¶Completing this Transportation Series is

THE SHIP BOOK

¶An abridged edition of Gordon Grant's famous "Story of the Ship." It shows important stages in the development of the merchant marine from early Egypt to the present day.

¶The three above titles are uniform size, 9 $\frac{3}{4}$  x 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ , bound in boards with cloth hinge. Retail price is 50 cents each.

¶Visualizing a more beautiful book than the

BIG LETTER A B C

would tax the most vivid imagination. A child who learns his alphabet from these pages starts his education with a masterpiece. Frederick Richardson made the pictures—really marvelous paintings of animals—and paper and color printing are all that the best of skill can attain. Its peer in books of this character, at any price, has yet to be published. Bound in boards, with cloth back, and colored jacket. The retail price is $2.00.

Paris, Vienna, Berlin,—and the ——— Best of American Schools

contributed to the art education of Hildegard Lupprian, developing in her a distinctive technique.

¶Her color treatment is suggestive of Edmund Dulac and critics have compared her work favorably with the art of that master illustrator.

¶Miss Lupprian has contributed to the McLoughlin line two beautiful books HONEY-LAND and LULLABY LAND.

¶She is also the author of the original and charming stories comprising their text. They were written and illustrated through her own inspiration and will strike a responsive note in the heart of every child. The pages of each are beautifully embellished with marginal decorations, the typography is large and inviting, and the full page pictures are marvels of appealing design and radiant color.

¶At the price of $1.00 each, these are prestige making volumes, for any bookshop. The size is 10 x 12, covers as illustrated, bound in boards with cloth hinge.

¶Clement Moore's "NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS" has always been a favorite text for illustrators and many excellent editions have appeared. Frank S. Lefevre's new McLoughlin edition will, instantly make a place for itself, for never has so fine an interpretation been offered at so low a price. Full page color pictures and half-page spreads of color visualize the poem in beautiful and brilliant effects. The text is a reprint of the original, complete, and printed from new large type plates. The size is 9½ x 12, the flexible limp linen edition retails for $1.00, the board edition with cloth back printed by offset lithography sells for $0.50.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF CHILDREN'S BOOKS

The Story of the origin and development of McLoughlin Bros. Inc. through four generations of publishing; with more than one hundred reproductions in color of "Centennial Line" Books.

Complimentary copies of this interesting book have been mailed to the book trade. If your copy has not been received, write us.

SPRING 1928 BOOKS from CHAPEL HILL

THE ROMANESQUE LYRIC: From Petronius to the Cambridge Poets

By Philip Schuyler Allen

* With Verse Englished by Howard Mumford Jones,
Author of America and French Culture

The poetry that departs from the classic, that sings the personal, the emotional, the sensual, even—here is the Romanesque lyric, carefully traced, and illustrated by English versions of exquisite poetic tact. $4.50. April

WILLIAM GREGG

Factory Builder of the Old South

By Broadus Mitchell

The fascinating story of this "first great bourgeois of the South," and his attempt to break the powerful tradition of cotton agriculturalism by introducing an industrial economy. The background of his period is exceptionally well drawn. $3.00 May

COUNTY GOVERNMENT And Administration in North Carolina

By Paul W. Wager

A study of peculiar interest to a state predominantly rural in its organization, since, besides giving a careful survey of county units, it shows some pressing abuses of the system. $5.00 May

PHONOGRAPHY In Folk Music

By Milton Metfessel

A new technique is given for registering the emotional overtones of folk music, ordinarily unobtainable by conventional notation. $3.00 May

GONGORISM

And the Golden Age

A Study of Exuberance and Unrestraint in the Arts

By Elisha K. Kane

With decorations by the author. It is not enough to dismiss the Spanish poet Gongora and the name he gave to a decadent art as mere bad taste. For Gongorism represents something too definite in the cycle of art, its manifestations are too rife today to be so lightly waved away. Mr. Kane analyzes the movement in poetry, drama, sculpture, painting, music, architecture, and decorates his book with sardonic appropriateness. $3.50. April

LECTURES ON EGYPTIAN ART

By Jean Capart

Making the rather challenging claim that the Egyptians equalled the Greeks in art, M. Capart goes for proof, not to the temple and tomb, but to the few relics of the industrial and domestic art of the Nile Valley. All the weight of recent excavation is convincingly brought to bear on this view. $5.00. March

TOWN AND COUNTRY

By Elva E. Miller

With decorations by J. J. Lankes

The battle between town and country is the subject of this volume, by the late editor of the Southern Agriculturist. And constructive methods of changing this situation lift the book from mere criticism, into something of practical value. $3.00 March

A STATE MOVEMENT In Railroad Development

By Cecil Kenneth Brown

North Carolina's attempt to operate its own east-to-west railroad has wider implications than mere local transportation. It is one of the earliest State experiments in the utility field. $5.00 March

GASTEROMYCETES of the Eastern U. S. and Canada

By William C. Coker and John N. Couch

A systematic and morphological study of all known gasteromycetes of Eastern North America. With over one hundred plates. $12.00 April

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA PRESS

The Oxford History of the United States 1783-1917

By SAMUEL ELIOT MORISON

Author of the Maritime History of Massachusetts

Two Volumes, boxed, $10.00

"What writing it is. The narrative moves with breadth and on occasion with grandeur. In the scant space of four pages he can tell the story of Lee's surrender and the assassination of Lincoln in sentences that quiver like heat lightnings. There are galleries of full-length portraits, painted with a brush which works in swift, powerful strokes, confident of its technique and with an art which recalls Trevelyan's. Here is the family history which we are all supposed to know and mostly do not. I can imagine the lay reader lingering with pleasure over these pages. I can also imagine scholars admiring their technical craftsmanship. It is such works, solid without being heavy, that are needed and needed so sorely to ballast our public opinion—not to say our ship of State—against its proneness to uneven keels and crazy courses. These pages of his are deeply and nobly felt."—The Atlantic Monthly.

The Oxford Book of American Verse

Chosen and Edited by BLISS CARMAN

Cloth, $3.75. Three quarter
Morocco (Blue or Maroon), gilt top, gold tooled, $8.50.

"Bliss Carman has made the selections and is editor—a fact which should be enough to recommend the book to many lovers of poetry . . . It covers the field of American verse thoroughly enough for the reader's full instruction and pleasure. All the older poets are represented, and the best of the contemporary."

—Christian Science Monitor.

"To the fine Oxford anthologies of the past has been added the book of American verse. It would be a capacious person indeed who could complain of Mr. Carman's choice of American poets."

—Chicago News.

"Has been done excellently well. There are 661 pages of poetry in Mr. Carman's collection, well printed on good paper and the book is tastefully bound as one has come to expect from a press of fine traditions."

—Herschel Brickell, New York Evening Post.

ENDYMION

By JOHN KEATS

$3.50

This type-facsimile of the poem as it was published in 1818 provides a delightful version of the poet's great work at a moderate price and makes a very beautiful book. Edited with introduction and notes by H. C. Notcutt

DAUGHTERS of FOLLY

by COSMO HAMILTON

THIS daring novel is the story of two jazz-mad American women in Europe—a beautiful young daughter and a plump middle-aged mother. The mother becomes infatuated with a gigolo in Paris, and the daughter becomes even more deeply involved. The theme of this novel is laid so frankly on a background of sex that any plain-speaking may be forgiven the author.

With this gay, satiric story Mr. Hamilton definitely proves his exceptional versatility as a novelist. $2.00

DISCUSSING such matters as art, food, money, roads, etc., this volume aids every train tourist to arrive at a complete understanding of the Italian scene, past and present. $2.75

The KING'S PASSPORT

by H. BEDFORD-JONES

D'ARTAGNAN and Cyrano de Bergerac, bitter enemies, are here united in common enmity against Richelieu. Through street brawls in the alleys of Paris, through the wide spread nets of the Cardinalist spies, down the great highroads of France their story moves. $2.00

CHILDREN of the FOG

by CARMEL HADEN GUEST

A GIRL'S search for beauty in the slums of London. "One of the most remarkable novels I have read for years."—John Buchan. $2.00

MEN ARE SO SELFISH!

by HORACE ANNESLEY
VACHELL

THE humorous account of Jim's masquerade as his sister Pat, wherein he seeks an answer to the question: are men more selfish than women? $2.00

The BLESSING of PAN

by LORD DUNSANY

IN an English village of our time people like ourselves are brought face to face with forces in nature as strange and overwhelming as they are irresistible. $2.00

The STRANGER at the FEAST

by GEORGE A. CHAMBERLAIN

THE story of a young American who returns to France, "like a corked bottle bursting with the desire to live," after being buried alive in Africa for nine years. $2.00

SAFARI

by MARTIN JOHNSON

HERE is the supreme story of the African wilderness. The author makes us spectators at the thousand-ringed circus of the African wilderness. Thrilling stories of big game—elephants, rhinos, giraffes, etc. Every day of the four years spent by the Johnsons in Africa witnessed a wild tragedy or comedy; an escape from death, or an amazing adventure among animals and natives. Profusely illustrated with actual photographs. $5.00

Babe Ruth's Book of Baseball

Babe Ruth gives us here the story of his life. He tells us how he himself started in to play the game and how he broke into big league baseball. He discusses the game from the point of view of a fine art. He illustrates his remarks with stories about players great and small with all of whom he has been personally acquainted and about whom he reminisces now to the delight of the reader.

Special Sales Plan on Babe Ruth's Book

HERE is a book which will appeal not only to many regular book buyers, but to millions who under ordinary circumstances never buy books at all.

The regular edition lists at $2.50. Of this edition 1000 copies will be autographed by the author and numbered, and supplied in special slip boxes. There will be no physical difference between the autographed copies and the regular copies aside from the slip boxes and the insertion of the autographed page bearing also the signature of G. P. Putnam's Sons attesting to the number of copies and the genuineness of the author's signature.

There will be no extra charge to booksellers for these autographed numbered copies. One autographed copy will be supplied at the regular price as one of each order of twenty-five copies received from booksellers. Thus, if a bookseller orders 25 copies of the book, he will receive 24 regular copies and one autographed copy. If he orders 100 copies he will receive 96 regular, and 4 autographed. If he orders 500 he will receive 480 regular and 20 autographed, and so on. Irrespective of the number of autographed copies, all the books, regular and autographed, will be billed at the regular price—$2.50 less regular discounts.

Autographed copies may be sold for as much as the bookseller can get. You know the demand among fans for balls, bats, and gloves autographed by the Babe. The demand for autographed copies of his book ought to be such as to enable you to sell them to enthusiastic fans for considerably more than the regular price of $2.50. If you should order 25 copies, get one autographed copy and sell it for say $5.00, the extra $2.50 would be equivalent to an additional discount of 4% on the twenty-five. If it should be sold for $10.00 the extra $7.50 would be equivalent to an additional discount of 12% on the 25 copies.

The autographed copies can be obtained only as described above in connection with orders for 25 books or multiples of 25. Thus an order for 40 books would carry only one autographed copy. An order for 50 would carry two.

Here is a Unique Opportunity for booksellers to capitalize an autographed numbered edition of a book which will interest, which will even thrill, the baseball fans of the United States.

It contains fascinating glimpses into the psychology which underlies big league play. It is full of intimate, revealing and amusing anecdotes about the author and others. It has a detailed analysis of the plays from every position on the diamond colored delightfully by humorous and pertinent anecdotes about the good and bad plays of the past.

Wood and Rowell's Health Supervision of Schools

This book is comprehensive and thoroughly practical. It is based on what the authors believe to be the eight fundamental aims of health supervision in schools. These fundamentals are:

1. To understand the school child thoroughly and to help him to realize the best health and development of which he is capable.
2. To protect the pupil against contracting disease from another child and to prevent his conveying disease to another.
3. To discover and to call to the parent's attention any existing health defects, more especially those of a remediable nature, and to assist the parents in providing suitable treatment.
4. To enlist the co-operation of all existing agencies for the correction of defects of school children and of teachers.
5. To provide special and optimum conditions for certain handicapped children and to furnish satisfactory supervision for them.
6. To provide suitable and healthful surroundings and conditions for the child in school.
7. To instruct the pupil how to lead a life of health and if defective, to instruct him how to overcome, as far as possible, the handicap of his infirmity.
8. To furnish technical information and guidance for all those who contribute in any way to school health service.

The carrying out of these eight aims implies a discussion of both the physical and the mental health of pupils, together with all necessary procedures to determine whether or not the child is healthy. For the teacher this means "health diagnosis"; for the school physician, it means disease diagnosis; and for the nurse it means an intermediate plane of duties—more advanced than that of the teacher but working with both school physician and teacher in attaining the desired results.

Health Supervision and Medical Inspection of Schools. Octavo of 637 pages, illustrated. By Thomas D. Wood, M.D., College Physician, Adviser in Health Education and Professor of Health Education, Teachers College, Columbia University; and Hugh G. Rowell, M.D., Physician to the Horace Mann Schools and Assistant Professor of Health Education, Teachers College, Columbia University. Cloth $7.50 net.

Statistics and prognostications from

The Inner Sanctum is often asked:
"Well, what do you expect to go big next?"

Here then is the prediction. It is based entirely on hunch. And it may be all wrong. For instance, in 1925 we thought The Poker Book would hit 25,000 and it hit 6,000. In 1926 we thought The Story of Philosophy would hit 5,000 in two years. At the end of its second year it will be well into its third hundred thousand.

THE INNER SANCTUM of SIMON & SCHUSTER
Publishers    37 West 57th Street    New York

 So there you are.

 There are two columns of figures. The first is our guess as to the advance sale (in some instances the exact advance as it was on publication date is given) and the second our guess as to how many copies will have been sold by December 31, 1928.

 We believe the figures are conservative. If some of them seem high—well you've got to read Bambi.

EXPLANATIONS OF THE PREDICTIONS

- a. This is exactly half as much as the first volume sold by the end of the first year. If Volume Two were twice as good as the first, we figure it would sell about the same as the first.
- b. The Joseph Pulitzer biography by Don Seitz went over 6,000. This one is as good, and much funnier and much more readable.
- c. That was the advance sale on date of publication, January 13. The first edition is out of stock. The weekly total is quite high, and the 3,000 total estimated sale is probably a bit low.
- d. The Schopenhauer advance sale was a little higher than the Plato, since there are more Plato editions on the market. Both should have a good continued sale (1) because people like to read the philosophers themselves, (2) because the books give really good physical value.
- e. Word will get around, we expect, that this is a nice book to own.
- f. Well, you know what The Inner Sanctum thinks of Bambi. If The Inner Sanctum had its way it would like to add two more zeros.
- g. The advance sale of Schnitzler's books is generally between three and four thousand. This, being a full length novel, is being ordered in larger quantities.
- h. This is about twice the total of the short Schnitzler novels. We estimate it that way, since Theresa is a Magnum Opus.
- i. We haven't been able to do much better than this on previous mystery stories.
- j. This is sort of conservative—especially after we saw the jacket that's going around Show Girl.
- k. It's sort of hard to do much with a book of this kind.
- l. Booksellers share our enthusiasm.
- m. And we believe the public will too.
- n. Well, let's see what the next Buranelli Hartswick Petherbridge opus will do.
- o. This figure is based on our experience with Tuite's last book: So They Played Bridge—and How.
- p. That's what they usually go.

"OH, RANGER!"

A Book of the National Parks

By HORACE M. ALBRIGHT
and FRANK J. TAYLOR

THE sizzle of bacon and trout on a hot griddle, the charm of a friendly yarn by the campfire at night, the breathless exhilaration of an early morning hike—"Oh Ranger!" has caught within its pages the sheer zest and joy of vacationing. The lore of the parks, their traditions and beauties, are here informally set forth by two men who for years have known intimately the parks and the rangers who run them. April. $2.50 postpaid.

Boswell's THE HYPOCHONDRIACK

Edited by MARGERY BAILEY

THE first modern edition of these seventy intimate essays by the great biographer. Boswell discourses upon a versatile range of topics—love, marriage, religion, conduct, executions, and even cookery. Dr. Bailey's treatment throws brilliant new light upon Dr. Johnson and the eighteenth century, and gives us a fresh portrait of the man Boswell. April. Two volumes, $15.00 postpaid.

SCHERMERHORN'S STORIES

1500 Anecdotes from Fifty Years of After-Dinner Speaking

All have been applause-picked and laughter-tested by the compiler and classifier, the founder and former publisher of the Detroit Times, and America's foremost after-dinner favorite.

James Schermerhorn knows his anecdotes. For long he has regaled his readers and convulsed his hearers with them.

Just as much as Aesop's Fables and Poor Richard's Almanack, he feels these merry quips should live because their ministry of mirth is for all time.

Topical groupings make the stories instantly available for speakers and writers who would pass on the joy of them to others.

Written and Compiled by Joe Hayman

This book has been compiled for "laughing purposes only" and it must not be accepted as a serious literary effort.

The author is the originator of "Cohen on the Telephone," series of gramophone records. His "Are you dere" has been a catch word on this side ever since his records were first made and over one and a half million "Cohen" records have been sold in the United States alone.

His book is a best seller in London and, although it was only published a few weeks ago, it already is in its fourth edition.

IN THE WAKE OF THE WIND SHIP

By FREDERICK WILLIAM WALLACE

In this volume Frederick William Wallace continues and completes the fascinating history of Maritime shipping so well begun in "Wooden Ships and Iron Men." Born of seafaring folk, raised in an atmosphere of ships and salt water, this Scotch-Canadian has acquired an expert's knowledge of what Old Ocean holds in its depths, as well as a varied acquaintance with the ways of craft and sailormen. He knows the merchantman of sail and steam; he is a "Banksman" of practical experience who has endured the hazards of the life.

In Condensed Form

THE nib of the matter as to any new book is in the short paragraph which the publisher writes about his new books to accompany his spring announcements. Every way to clear description and suggestive analysis is invoked to make those few words carry to the handler of books, bookseller, librarian, or critic, a clear idea of the real nature of the book and its reason for being. Why was the book written, for what purpose, why does the publishers believe there is a need for it? That the advertisement tries to express in a few words.

The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

THE AMERICAN BOOKTRADE JOURNAL

NEW YORK, MARCH 10, 1928

Our Quarterly Indexes

IN this number of the Publishers' Weekly there goes to subscribers the second of the quarterly indexes of new books for 1928, an author and title index of 100 pages which will be distributed in an edition of 7,500 copies, about 10 per cent above the average circulation. These indexes supply the American booktrade with a trade tool of great scope and value.

There will be a total this year in the Publishers' Weekly of about 306 pages of index, a large volume in itself. The Mid-Winter Index of January 7th had 35 pages; the Spring Index, 101; the Mid-Summer will be about 50 pages long, and the Fall Index, if it is like last year, will be 120 pages. These indexes are arranged by both title and author and also by series. In the Spring Index about 3,500 volumes have been listed, a list smaller by 5% than that of last year as compared to a 15% increase between 1926 and 1927.

As so much is said in public discussion about the flood of books, the Publishers' Weekly may take this occasion to point out that, in the total number of new titles published in a year in the field of general publishing, there are still not as many as there were fifteen years ago. The percentage of books that fall into the spring months, however, has definitely increased. Fifteen years ago the spring index list was usually 60% as long as that of the fall; today it is over 80%. This does not mean that the spring business is 80% as important in volume as the fall, as a great many miscellaneous titles come out in the spring in order to avoid the high pressure of big titles in the months of October to December, but there has been a very general increase in the importance of the spring season.

The Publishers' Weekly collects the information for the indexes by a systematic canvass of all publishers and lists alphabetically every announcement received up to the last moment.

No bookseller can carry all of the new books issued. Most booksellers have to find their special lines and need this aid to give prompt service in those fields in which they do not specialize. No other retail business has such exacting demands made upon its salesmen for exact information as to past and present productions and no trade has so many tools thru which the information can be located. From the foundations of Roorbach, Kelly & Leopoldt there has been built up the facilities of the U. S. Catalog, Trade List Annual and Publishers' Weekly Indexes.

THIRTY-FIVE HUNDRED volumes, covering the Spring output of American publishers are indexed in this number. During each year, approximately nine thousand volumes, including new editions are listed in six hundred pages of Weekly Record and indexed in three hundred and more pages of quarterly index.

What $1,000 in Advertising Will Do in the Spring of 1928

By Polly Street

Promotion Manager, Frederick A. Stokes Company

RICHARD L. SIMON'S admirable article, "Advertising a Given Book," in the March Atlantic Bookshelf has much food for thought for any of us in the book field who have to do with sales promotion. In discussing the size of the advertising appropriation for a book, Mr. Simon says, "An intuition or a hunch about a book sometimes causes us to increase the price-per-copy appropriation. For instance, we are about to publish a $2.00 book, the first printing of which is 2000 copies. So little can be done with $400.00, which would be the regular appropriation on the 10% basis, that we decide, because we have a hunch the book has a chance, to allot an arbitrary initial advertising fund, say of $750.00."

Going somewhat further and allotting $1,000, I sat down one evening last week to figure out an imaginary promotion campaign for a $2 first novel by an unknown author, restricting my campaign in the newspapers to New York City, following out Mr. Simon's idea that "the potentialities of a best seller are usually first discovered in some of the New York bookstores." Incidentally my experience tallies with Mr. Simon's further statement that "When we have had a book that seems to be catching on, we have noticed the first reorders have come in from The Penn Terminal Book Shop, Brentano's, Macy's, and the bookstores around Washington Square. Why, I don't know. I suspect it may be that the managers of the stores watch reviews closely, and read the books before they are generally read elsewhere. Then they recommend them to their customers, who in turn have come to rely upon their judgment. I suspect, also, that gossip about forthcoming books circulates in these stores via customers (and authors' friends) before the books are actually published . . . This has been confirmed when I have discussed the matter with other publishers and publishers' salesmen. There are one or two booksellers in almost every city who are quick on the trigger. An expression of gratitude for the existence of this type of bookseller would be gratuitous. Other booksellers may eventually buy more copies of a book, once it has caught on, but I believe it is due to this increasing group of alert booksellers that publishers owe the eventual large sales of a particular title that arrives unheralded. Not only do they start a book in a community, but they bolster up a publisher's enthusiasm and faith at the zero hour of the book's career.

Perhaps some booksellers, librarians and others interested in books will share my interest in the figures and perhaps those who have not before given thought to the cost of campaigns will have more respect for what publishers do for their authors. Naturally there are other combinations of papers and magazines that might be used to equally good advantage—my choice was dictated by the belief that the standing of the media listed was well known to all in the book trade.

(Note: Advertising rates are taken from the February 1928 Standard Rate and Data Service. I assume that the publisher has a contract for at least 5,000 lines in the New York Times, Herald-Tribune and World, and for six pages in the Atlantic Monthly and Harper's or Scribner's Magazines. The sum of 40 cents per copy for books sent out for review is obtained by taking a certain percentage of the manufacturing cost of each copy which is charged to advertising, plus 10 cents per copy for postage.)

I make no comment on the inadequacy of such a campaign beyond pointing out that this expenditure does not permit of a poster or circular. It provides for newspaper advertising in medium-size space on two Book Pages in New York City only, for but two consecutive weeks and in smaller space for two further weeks and a very small space once a week for four weeks in two daily papers. "Altho this restriction of newspaper space to New York is in line with Mr. Simon's belief—"I have come more and more to the conclusion that it is best to concentrate advertising in as few media as possible. The intensity of the attack is thus immeasurably enhanced. The total effect is more dramatic, because you can take larger space and repeat your advertisements. Without some repetition a campaign is woefully handicapped"—there is precious little chance for the valuable repetition in this campaign!

The one cheering result of putting these figures down in black-and-white has been the very healthy respect the few authors to whom I have shown them have shown for the actual, more elaborate campaigns planned for their novels. Perhaps it's a good idea for authors generally to realize how little purchasing power the advertising dollar has!

Reconsider the Advertising

And You Will Find It Not So "Different"

Alexander Van Rensselaer

Co-author of "The Business of Writing"

SOMEbody is always taking the joy out of publishers' advertising. Publishers' advertising is "different," the croakers say; every new book is a new product, a new problem. They tell you that because of the overwhelming number of new products and new problems which a publishing house generates, publishers' advertising cannot follow the principles and methods so painstakingly constructed by the advertisers of goods other than books; and, above all, it cannot obtain any sort of cumulative effect or achieve continuity.

"Advertising for a publisher," says Philip G. Wylie, in his article "Consider the Advertising," which appeared in a recent issue of The Publishers' Weekly, "is not the same thing as advertising for a cigarette manufacturer, a national baker, or an automobile maker." Is advertising for a cigarette manufacturer the same thing as advertising for a national baker, or an automobile maker?

Perhaps the problems of publishers' advertising are more complex than those of automobile advertising. But the explanation is that the publisher has not the comfortable margin of profit to work with that the automobile maker can hopefully count upon. The publishers' riddle is, how to get the greatest possible result from the least possible expenditure.

To be sure, this problem is not peculiar to the publishing business. Every advertising man's duty is to obtain the maximum amount of effective publicity with the appropriation allotted to him. But the publisher is more dependent than others upon hundred per cent advertising efficiency. He must consider the return on every penny spent.

To make sure of a full return from advertising money spent, the manufacturer first studies his market and then examines the mediums which seem best suited to cultivate that market. Finally he co-ordinates his sales campaign with his advertising program. And it is right here that most of the publishers fall down. Most publishers' advertising has to be so different from other types of advertising chiefly because so many of the publishers fail to realize the vital importance of unifying their sales and advertising activities.

A publisher places upon his list a novel by a new author. (And frequently a book will slip into the list unknown to the advertising man until it is in page proof). The publisher has accepted the novel because the author seems to be worth developing and because the novel itself has sales possibilities. The publisher's attitude towards this book is: the novel has a chance, altho somewhat slim, of getting over; on the other hand, if it fails to "get over," it will probably at least pay for itself, and maybe do a little better than that. There is a legion of such books on the combined lists of all our publishers; and how are they marketed?

Here is what happens. The instructions to the advertising manager, after a "conference," will be of this nature: "We cannot afford to do very much for this book; we've got too many others just as good to worry about. But this book has possibilities and also we want to cultivate its author, who seems to be a comer. We'll have to do something; so give the book a good jacket, get all the free publicity you can for it, and spend about $350 on display advertising."

That's about it. But where is that particular book going to be sold? What bookstores will carry it in stock? What type of person is going to purchase it?

Does the advertising manager get satisfactory answers to these questions? Generally not. He is told that the salesmen will carry dummies of the book, and he knows from experience that the salesmen will call upon so many bookstores in so many cities scattered far and wide over the map of the United States, and that they will supply any bookseller who can be persuaded to take a chance on buying the book. At the time he must plan his campaign and get his copy ready, that is about all the information he has to work with. He reads the book, perhaps; and forms an idea as to the sort of person the book will interest.

Of course there is only one thing for him to do. The book is going to be sold, after a fashion, nationally; and he has $350 for a national advertising campaign! He advertises the book in the trade weeklies in order to back up his book salesmen. He sends out a hundred or so review copies to the critics with an earnest prayer that it will be "talked up." And he sends a petit advertisement or two to the book sections of three or four publications that are read by booksellers and some bookbuyers.

I do not believe that the procedure outlined describes the best possible method of merchandising books. There ought to be planned for every book that has a chance of "getting over," a more unified sales and advertising campaign. If only $350 is the logical percentage for advertising a certain book, the sales effort and advertising efforts ought to be concentrated upon a limited field, and then if the book "gets over" in this field, a wider area can be covered.

One wouldn't advertise an automobile in San Francisco that is not available outside of New York state; nor attempt to sell in certain districts of Harlem a book advocating the lynching of all colored folk. Yet publishers do things just as incongruous. Publishers' advertising seems to be based 50 per cent upon tradition, 25 per cent upon prejudice, and not more than 25 per cent upon experience and thoughtful study.

Publishers' advertising copy, until very recently, has also reflected the conservatism of those who believe that nothing under a hundred years old has merit. You do not have to look very far back thru the bound volumes of any literary magazine or newspaper book section to convince yourself that publishers in general have been loath to break away from the cut-and-dried title-author-brief-description type of book advertising in vogue at the turn of the century.

There is no reason why the advertising of a publishing house cannot be based upon the fundamental theories and principles which today control most of the advertising of other manufacturers and concerns. The principles which govern the mechanics of advertising, the making of attractive and articulate lay-outs, and the writing of interesting and appealing and purposeful copy, apply to all manner of advertisements, whether they feature shoes or ships or sealing wax or cabbages or books. And if more publishers employed advertising men who have a speaking acquaintance with these principles, the making of book advertising would not long remain such an obviously peculiar and "different" undertaking.

I have little patience with the argument that, because each book is a new product, it must be presented independently, and, therefore, from the viewpoint of the publisher, no definite cumulative effect can be obtained in advertising it, excepting for future books by the same author. I am convinced that it is possible to so direct the advertising and publicity of a publishing house that every bit of copy sent out will serve to "sell" the publishing house as well as the books of the publishing house. Many concerns sell silverware of innumerable shapes and designs, but for long there has been only one Tiffany.

No one can be made to enjoy a book simply by impressing upon him that it is the publication of a certain house, but a publisher ought to be able to develop, both thru his performance and thru his advertising, a definite reputation which will create a feeling of confidence among a large group of people and which will tempt these people to look first for the books which come from his particular house.

Publishers' advertising, altho more complicated than many, by no means all, other kinds of advertising, is not so very "different"; it is rather, at the moment, indifferent.

Conserving Stock vs. The Quick Turnover

Morris H. Briggs

Author of "Buying and Selling Rare Books"

PRESENT day business is conducted on the theory of mass production and a quick turnover. Due to the advance in production methods the problems of supply have been largely solved. Business problems remaining are chiefly those of selling. Sales have been accelerated to a degree that is apparent to even the casual observer. During a special sale held recently by the Boston Store of Chicago, more merchandise was sold during eight hours than the store's yearly sales of a decade ago. The ambition of every modern sale's manager is to turn his stock over just as rapidly as possible, obtaining small profits and many of them.

To conduct a successful second-hand book business advantage must be taken of modern merchandising methods. The problem of obtaining a stock is not a serious one. Due to enormous book production the supply of second-hand books is increasing yearly. In fact the day will never come when such books cannot be bought more rapidly than they can be sold. Experienced booksellers find their vital problems those of selling; those notably successful in this field are turning their stocks, whether of rare or common items, just as quickly as possible.

Knowledge of books is an important aid to success in second-hand bookselling but without merchandising ability it may prove a liability. Good merchants have gone into this business lacking book lore entirely and have made a success thru taking advantage of basic selling principles, turning their stocks over rapidly at a small profit. Quick turnover is all important and every department of a second-hand book business should be subordinated to this end.

A quick turnover does not mean that rare books or worthy books of any kind should be sacrificed or sold at figures far below their worth. It does mean, however, that a second-hand book business should be conducted in such a manner that it can meet its fixed expenses, buy stock and obtain the largest possible profit on the amount invested. Accounting shows that profits come thru frequent sales rather than a conserved and slowly moving stock. This cannot be questioned in the case of moderate priced second-hand books as every bookseller knows that stock of this nature must be moved rapidly in order to prevent his store being choked with it. It is found equally true in the case of rare books when the matter is given careful consideration. If a general bookseller has only a small capital to invest in rare books he must of necessity move his stock rapidly or he cannot continue to handle them. If he possesses sufficient capital to mark up his rare books to the top market price and to hold them until they sell for these figures, accounting will prove to him the error of the practice. Allowing him an investment of $3,000 yearly in rare book items and figuring yearly sales of one-third of this amount at a 200% markup, the proceeds will just return him his investment with no cash profit. If he invests $60 weekly in rare books and sells 75% of them weekly at a mark-up of 100% this department of the business will net a cash profit of $1560. True the dealer who conserved his stock will have rare book items remaining at the end of the year amounting to $2,000 at cost and the bookseller who sold rapidly only $780, but at the end of the year the latter will have most of the business and a reputation for giving values that will eventually bring him the remainder. He will also have the advantage in that his stock is novel and constantly changing. Rare book buyers avoid a store where they always see the same items on the shelves. This factor alone more than makes up for any depreciation in values that might come from holding two-thirds of a stock of rare books for a period of a year. Frequent sales are the life of any business and the trade in rare books is no exception to the rule.

Granting that a quick turnover is desirable in every department of a second-hand book business it is well to consider some of the merchandising methods by which it can be obtained:

Buying for a Quick Turnover

Large lots of second-hand books should not be bought unless containing a sufficient percentage of quickly and readily saleable items to return a profit on the entire lot within a short time. Lots containing only junk are high at any price as they are hard to sell and slow moving. Under the most favorable circumstances enough junk will be secured to keep the bookseller busy moving it; if he is not careful to keep the percentage down as much as possible, he will soon find his store clogged with unsaleable stock.

In buying small lots of books and single volumes junk should never be taken. Higher and fairer prices can be paid for good items and it is surprising how many of these will be offered to the man who has built up a reputation for paying a fair price. Book scouts are becoming better posted every day and will sell to the bookseller who gives them a fair deal.

Sorting and Pricing

After purchase lots of second-hand books should be divided roughly into two classes:
1—Books selling for less than $1 each;
2—Books selling for $1 each or more. For a rapid turnover books in Class 1 should not be displayed on shelves or in cases but grouped on bargain tables or stalls priced at 25, 50 and 75 cents. It does not pay to spend much time in classifying the cheaper books. However the more expensive ones should be carefully classified and grouped in sections on the shelves or in cases, so that customers may readily locate the books in which they are interested.

Cheap books should be priced at figures which will move them rapidly. If found unsaleable at one price rapid reductions are in order and if they do not move at the lowest reasonable figure it is better to sell for old paper than to devote any large proportion of store space to them over a long period of time. In the case of rare books prices should be adjusted for a rapid turnover, which in the case of most second-hand bookstores means a considerable discount from the top market figures. In most cases the second-hand dealer can scarcely hope to compete with the rare book specialist, as granted equal ability and knowledge he will find it impossible to devote as much time to this department. He should make it a rule to obtain as high prices as is consistent with a quick turnover. This ratio will depend on his location, his knowledge and ability to sell rare books, his proficiency in getting in touch with collectors, personally and by mail, or, in short, his efficiency in conducting a rare book department.

Store Arrangement

It will pay every second-hand bookseller to observe the methods of successful chain stores in displaying their stock, notably the drug and ten cent stores. Quick selling and profitable lines should be given places of advantage where the turnover will be even quicker. Books should be made easy of access to customers and never crowded into a store until it is difficult to look them over. It is much better to have a storage space for surplus stock than to overcrowd the display space. Shelving should rarely be more than eight feet in height, and all books and fixtures should be kept clean and free from dust. Fine books of all kinds which are likely to be damaged by handling should be kept in cases with glass doors. It is important to have good store and window illumination at all times.

Store Location

This is a very important factor in quick turnover and one to which the chain stores have devoted special attention. In choosing a location for a second-hand bookstore every effort should be made to obtain the greatest possible number of passersby for the available rent money. This involves a careful study of possible locations before renting. To do an extensive business in moderate priced second-hand books it is absolutely necessary to select a lively street and in most cases one which is busy both day and night.

Selling

Department and chain store methods of selling can often be adapted to second-hand bookselling. No single merchant has a monopoly of efficient methods of speeding up the turnover. If chains of drug stores can make money by putting on a "One Cent Sale" there is no reason why the bookseller cannot follow their example. Everybody likes a bargain, even if only a hypothetical one. There are a surprising number of people who would not buy one book for twenty-five cents, but who could be induced to carry out two for fifty-one cents. In other lines merchants are continually carrying on special sales of all kinds. It must and does pay. Logical and attractive excuses can be found for such sales, avoiding the hackneyed and timeworn. Window, wall and table space should be utilized for displaying advertising messages. Price cards should be frequent and neatly prepared. Window displays should be made attractive and changed frequently. A store bulletin may be displayed in the window giving information on books wanted and also on special libraries or items for sale within:

Several hundred pages could be devoted to novel methods of selling for the second-hand bookseller. Books are the liveliest things in the world and there is no excuse for not adopting modern and interesting methods of marketing them. Traditions of the past can be thrown to the winds as has been done in the case of the drug store, which at present bears little resemblance to the dignified chemist's shop of the 90's. Few of these old-fashioned drug stores remain but are well worth a visit just to note the advancement that has been made commercially by their successors the chain stores such as Liggett's, the Owl Stores, Walgreens and myriads of others. Some of us regret the old days and go back in memory to second-hand stores of the old type. A few such stores remain but they are passing rapidly, victims of commercial evolution. They cannot compete with the modern, second-hand bookstore. Much as the past may be regretted it is folly to cling to antiquated selling methods and the notable second-hand bookselling successes of the future will be those taking the utmost advantage of every modern up-to-date selling method.

In all lines of business involving the merchandising of a large number of low priced articles, slow, dignified selling is a thing of the past. Expenses have risen to such an extent that the expansion, usually the very life of a business, depends on the securing of a rapid turnover. The second-hand book business is no exception to this rule; in fact a short experience in it will sooner teach the folly of conserving stock than a hundred pages of printed advice. Success in second-hand bookselling is directly proportionate to the rate of the turnover.

Brown's Book Store

We buy old Lapeer County histories and genealogies.

1000 copies of old novels wanted.

We have just purchased the fine library of Frank J. Brown. Over 2000 fine books offered at bargain prices.

Fair prices paid at all times in cash for libraries or single volumes.

Chicago Book News

Milton Fairman
of the Chicago Evening Post

PASCAL COVICI has announced an interesting list for spring publication. First and foremost is a complete and limited edition of the poems of Francois Villon in two volumes. The French text will be given with an English translation by J. U. Nicolson, author of "The King of the Black Isles," who is an authority on poetry of this period and whose own verse has won him a large following.

Another important item is Francois Carco's novel, "Perversity," which Ford Madox Ford called the "second Madame Bovary" and then decided to translate. Then there is "The Wild Party" by Joseph Moncure March, a young New Yorker. Of it and its author Louis Untermeyer has said many kind words: "It is one of the most highly exciting and vividly projected books I have read in years. Its author is a genuine personality." The edition is limited to 750 copies, illustrated by R. Marsh.

THE Illinois supreme court has denied a writ of certiorari to the Atwell Printing and Binding Company for a review of its case against the Prairie Farmer magazine. Appeal was asked from a superior court decision where the printing company lost its suit for $250,000 for a broken contract.

A "Once-a-Month" book club for its customers has been inaugurated by the Walden shop. The store recommends a book—this month Maurois' "Disraeli"—and at the same time offers a $25 prize for the best 500-word review of it.

SIDNEY M. AVERY, Chicago manager for Brentano's, is making preparation to move the concern's store into new quarters in the recently completed Pittsfield building. Brentano's have leased 16,500 feet in the building and will move about May 1. Meanwhile a big removal sale is in progress.

THE Methodist Book concern announced that a first day sale of hundreds of copies greeted E. Stanley Jones' new book, "Christ at the Round Table." The sale to date of Mr. Jones' previous work, "The Christ of the Indian Road," was reported at being upward of 300,000.

THE Argus bookstore, 436 South Wabash avenue, has taken over some of the publications of Mitchell Kennerley, including some items which have been difficult to obtain for a number of years. The store also has acquired the remaining stock of the large paper edition of "The Crock of Gold," by James Stephens. This edition is signed by the author and has Thomas Mackenzie's illustrations.

VERA VALENTINE'S bookshop in the Illinois Merchants' Trust building celebrated its fifth birthday on its patron's feast—February 14. Miss Valentine will open a branch store May 1 in suite 1463 of the new State Bank building.

SHAKESPEARE week was observed in Chicago with an elaborate program in the Marshall Field book rooms. The American Book, with names of subscribers to the memorial fund, was first displayed on the steps of the Art Institute, and then installed in Field's for the week. An exhibit of Shakespeariana was loaned to Field's by the Harper library of the University of Chicago. A poet's program was given under the direction of Harriet Monroe, and Clara Laughlin, author of "So You're Going to Paris!" gave a lecture on the Shakespeare country.

NOEL COVENTRY, formerly assistant editor for P. F. Volland & Co., has been appointed juvenile editor for Laird and Lee. Miss Coventry is an authority on children's literature.

How Many Books?

IN newspaper discussions on the outpouring of new books the critics do not usually venture to indicate just where they wish this flood to stop. Quite often the impression is given that, inasmuch as no one person is likely to read more than 100 books a year, any publishing beyond that would be a waste of type and presswork; or it is assumed that the publishing of books is solely for the printing and preservation of masterpieces of belles lettres, with the fact overlooked that other fields of authorship and public record must use type and printing for other important purposes.

It may be admitted at once that the gathering of the fine flower of the imagination is the most important use of the book, but without making any detailed comparisons, one must also point out the great values of other publishing. As the fields of human activity grow more diversified, there are more and more general subjects which need to be recorded in book form, and the totals of book production for the year are bound to reflect this. Because there is a need of new books on business, automobiles or aviation, it is not to be expected that the number of titles in philosophy, poetry or religion should be decreased to make room for them.

There are undoubtedly books in each month's publications that could be foregone, but it is not so easy to drop off hundreds of books as some of the critics seem to expect. Let anyone take a single number of the Weekly Record and see just which volumes he would decide, if he were the public censor, to drop out. We pick up the Weekly Record of March 3rd, as an example and read at random. Here is listed a book on "Birds of the Ocean" from Putnam's, a rather unusual book of possibly limited demand, but who would deny that it will be a volume valued by bird lovers and travelers?; a book on "New Trails in Old Spain" from Sears, worth while if only for its pictures and also because travel to Spain is constantly increasing; a new edition of Bacon's "Essays" from Nelson, and certainly we haven't reached the time when we can begrudge a new reprinting of that masterpiece; a new book of games for children from the same house; a well-told story of Lady Mary Montague from Bobbs-Merrill; a book by Hilaire Belloc from Putnam on Danton, not previously available in this country; a textbook on electrical engineering; a volume on "Health for Every Day"; a book on "Cable and Wireless Communications of the World" that certainly supplies new and needed information; a volume on "Majorcan Houses and Gardens" from Helburn, a volume which is not made for large circulation but will appeal strongly to a few. Thus a censor might go from book to book thru the average weekly product and find great difficulty in deciding where the curtailment is to be made.

Some manuscripts are never published because the effort of authorship is too great for their completion; some are not published because of the close winnowing of publishers who hesitate to carry their selling program much beyond that of the previous year; some fail of publication because the publisher, while pleased with the manuscript, decides that there is a duplication of the material already available; some fail of publication because the potential market is not great enough to justify the expense of printing. There are a great many things which keep the total of books down to approximately 7,500 new titles which are issued each year.

The Book Buyer's Dollar

THE purchasing power of the dollar has steadied itself apparently at about two-thirds of its pre-war value which gives new opportunity to study the effect of this changing currency in the field of books.

For some time after the movement began to be felt, book prices did not change as rapidly as did the prices of other merchandise. It was two or three years before the level of book prices came on a par with the general averages of other merchandise, but it finally became necessary for the publishers to recognize in their cost-computing these changing levels, and the book field accepted the general currency level.

The public which one time bought the large octavos at $3 asks questions as to why the $5 price is necessary, but, judging by the increased sales of books in this field, this has been no deterrent to book distribution. In the field of fiction the old prices of $1.35 and $1.50 have become $2 or $2.50, and the reprints that were 50c. are now 75c. There is one interesting feature of the situation, however, that should be noted. With the increasing of the book market there has come increased opportunity for reprinted editions where the economies of long press runs (unaffected by the rapid increase in the cost of typesetting which has been taken care of in the first edition), make it possible to approximate the values of the old pre-war dollar.

If the public will examine just what it can get for a dollar bill in a bookstore in a copyright book, it will see what has happened. From the $1 book counters the buyer can pick such volumes as "The Life of Pasteur" by Vallery-Radot, "Seven Great Statesmen" by Andrew D. White, "The Log of the Sun" by William Beebe, to select at random from the Star Series; or he may buy Willa Cather's "Professor's House," Hamsun's "Growth of the Soil" in the "Novels of Distinction" from Grosset; or, to turn to the widely distributed Modern Library (at 95c.) there are such books as Hardy's "Jude the Obscure" or "The Philosophy of William James"; or turn to Appleton's Dollar Library and find at this price Gilbert Murray's "History of Greek Literature," Maurois' "Ariel," or Draper's

"Conflict Between Science and Religion"; Scribner's Modern Students' Library includes such copyright material as Galsworthy's "The Patrician" and Wharton's "Ethan Frome"; Macmillan's Modern Readers' Series includes Twain's "Innocents Abroad," Wister's "Lady Baltimore," James' "Daisy Miller." At a quarter more than the dollar the Borzoi books offer a long list of contemporary authors still in copyright of such immediate interest as Hudson, Cather, Forster, Mencken, etc., and the Vanguard Press has been putting the good old half dollar in position with a long list of books in the social and economic field.

Certainly such substantial books, with many other reprints at prices near the dollar, is an indication of an important tendency in book selling and those who may be worrying about the book buyer's dollar should have such volumes brought to their attention by the bookstores.

Postal Hearing

AFTER the very strong presentation by the publishers and others of the case of lower book postage before the House Committee on Postal Matters, the Post Office Department, on February 29th, brought in its comment on this and other proposed changes. In this report it was claimed that the rate of 2½ cents a pound flat on books would lead to a loss on the part of the Department. A comparison was drawn between the express, freight and proposed fifth class rate on books and the claim made that the latter rate was too low to cover cost. No comparison was made with the rate of 1½ cents a pound on the same material if in magazine form. The Post Office Department, however, accepted the validity of the educational plea and made a proposal that there should be included in the new bill a rate of 3 cents a pound, with 2 cents for every additional pound, on books when sent out by libraries not organized for profit and to include an area of distribution up to the third zone or in the state of mailing. This lower rate for library books had been before the department for many years as presented by a special committee of the American Library Association.

"The proposal is fine as far as it goes," argued the brief which the publishers filed in reply, "but it is entirely too restricted and really gives very little relief from the present rates. There would be a reduction of 5 cents on parcels mailed to points in the third zone; a reduction of 4 cents on parcels of such books weighing one pound mailed to points in the local, first and second zones; a reduction of 3 cents on parcels weighing two pounds mailed to points in the local, first and second zones; a reduction of 2 cents on parcels weighing three pounds mailed to the first and second zones and of 1 cent on such parcels in the local zone; a reduction of 1 cent on parcels weighing four pounds mailed to the first and second zones. Beyond this, there is no reduction and the proposed amendment in no way goes as far as it should.

"We appeal to the Committee to go further and extend the principle of this amendment so as to include all books, mailed under all circumstances and so as to apply to the more distant zones where the present rates are most excessive. The purchaser of books needs relief from the present rates equally as much as the borrower of books. It should be remembered that such relief as is granted in the matter of book postage by the Congress is solely for the benefit of the users of books."

Advertising to the Trade

"IN adapting advertising to its destined sphere of usefulness, we of the business press have endeavored to do our share," said James H. McGraw, president of the McGraw Hill Publishing Co., on the occasion of receiving a special medal, one of the Harvard Advertising awards. "The consumer medium creates consumer demand and directs the consumer to the dealer. Our function is to move goods from industry to industry, and from maker to distributor. To no small degree, industry's profits are measured by economies in those many inter-industry and inter-merchant movements which lie back of the final sale.

"The very essence of the business press is an intimate relationship with an understanding of the industry or trade served. The significance of its editorial counsel finds reflection in the use of its advertising pages. Over inter-industry transactions, the industrial paper throws an effective net, tapping in for every industry on its supply channels, and affording the supplier a direct contact with his market. The buyer uses the industrial paper as a tool of operation, making it the channel through which he selects the materials and equipment for the efficient manufacture of his product.

"The business press is friend and counselor of distributor and dealer. It is a powerful instrument in developing producer-distributor relationships that smooth the flow of goods to the public. It transmits evidences of sustained demand, introduces new products quickly, demonstrates the power of quality. Thru the trade paper is established a community of interest between manufacturer, distributor and dealer. They become cooperating elements by which consumer wants are filled with desired merchandise of known quality, with prices reflecting speedy turnover."

McAndrew Sues Thompson

MAYOR THOMPSON of Chicago has been sued by former Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew in a libel action based on statements in connection with the Mayor's campaign to eliminate Mr. McAndrew from the school position. Mayor Thompson is alleged to have called Superintendent McAndrew "King George's stool pigeon" as well as having charged him with introducing unAmerican textbooks in the school, with removing "The Spirit of '76" from the school walls, and with cutting out the picture of George Washington from historical texts.

Femina-Vie Heureuse Prize

THE French Femina-Vie Heureuse Prize of 5,000 francs is awarded annually on the same day as the Goncourt Prize. It is offered conjointly by Femina, a magazine much like the American Vogue, and Vie Heureuse, another French monthly periodical, to the best work of imagination in the French language, prose or poetry, by a man or a woman. The unique thing about this prize is that the jury of award is made up entirely of French women writers.

The prize was founded in 1904 "for the purpose of encouraging Letters and of making closer fraternal relations among women of letters. . . . The prize may not be divided. It aims to encourage a career and to recompense a strong and original work which gives evidence of thought and force and which at the same time gives promise for the future." (Translated from "Les Prix Littéraires.")

In 1921 the conditions of the award were changed and the prize became a sort of literary entente between France and England, being awarded to the French work most suitable of translation into English and most worthy of representing current French letters abroad. At the same time Lady Northcliffe, wife of the late owner of the London Times, founded a reciprocal prize for the best English work suitable of translation into French. The prize thus became a double prize, one for a French author and one for an English author. The award to the English work amounts to £40. After three years Lady Northcliffe (now Lady Hudson) found herself unable to continue this award and the publishing house of Hodder & Stoughton took over the responsibility for the English prize.

The awards are as follows:

- |      |                                         |      |                                                                    |

Dodd, Mead Novel Contest

DODD, MEAD AND COMPANY announce a third Prize Novel Contest, for the best first novel submitted by an American or Canadian author, for December 1st, 1928. The amount of the prize is $5,000, and additional details regarding the competition may be obtained from the well-known literary agents, Curtis Brown, Limited, 116 West 39th Street, New York City, who are handling the contest for Dodd, Mead and Company. There is no limitation as to the subject matter of the novel except that the competitors are urged not to write with a view to serialization or moving picture production. Decision will be based entirely on the character of the manuscript as a novel for book publication.

Window Display Contest

CASH prizes to the amount of $200 are being offered by the Bobbs-Merrill Company for the most attractive window displays of George Wycherley's "Buccaneers of the Pacific." Two prizes, $75.00 and $25.00, for windows six feet in length or less and two prizes of the same amounts for windows six feet in length or more are offered. The judges will be Frederic G. Melcher, editor of the Publishers' Weekly, M. A. Corrigan of the Baker & Taylor Company and Charles William Taussig.

The contest opened March second, publication day of "Buccaneers of the Pacific" and will close April twentieth at midnight. Awards will be announced June fifteenth. Awards will be made on the basis of photographs submitted by the contestants. Any cards, quotations or ideas developed by contestants which do not win any prize and which the publishers should like to use in their promotion of the book will be purchased from the contestants at a figure to be determined by individual negotiation in each instance. Two dollars will be paid for each photograph of a window devoted exclusively to the book which does not win a prize.

Further particulars may be had on request from the Bobbs-Merrill Company in Indianapolis.

$25,000 Competition for Novel About the War

WITH the 10th anniversary of the termination of the World War, the editors of The American Legion Monthly and of Houghton Mifflin Company believe that the time has come for the appearance of the "great novel of the war." They are joining, therefore, in offering a cash prize of $25,000 for the best novel dealing with the period of the World War, and with the war as its background.

This payment will cover the right of first serial publication in The American Legion Monthly but Houghton Mifflin Company's share of the award will be in addition to royalties on the sales of the book. The competition will close at 5 P.M., May 1st, 1929. Manuscripts may be submitted at any time prior to that date, early submission being encouraged. All manuscripts are to be considered as submitted to The American Legion Monthly for first serial publication and to Houghton Mifflin for publication in book form on the customary terms.

The judges of the competition will be Alice Duer Miller, Major General James G. Harbord, U. S. A., Richard Henry Little, John T. Winterich and Ferris Greenslet. All communications should be addressed to War Novel Competition, Houghton, Mifflin Company, 2 Park Street, Boston, Mass.

No Prize in Glee Clubs Contest

THE Associated Glee Clubs of America announced that not one of the 1,500 poems submitted in a contest was of sufficient distinction to merit a prize.

The contest was conducted in the hope of obtaining poems which could be set to music for male chorus use and be used by glee clubs.

$1000 Title Contest

REILLY & LEE have announced that they will give a prize of $1,000 for the best title, accompanied by the best fifty word letter setting out the reasons for selecting this title for the Edgar Guest Book of Verse which will be published in August. The title contest will close April 30.

An A. B. A. Page

Ellis W. Meyers, Executive Secretary
25 East 10th Street, New York City

IT is not too much to ask a person who possesses imagination (and who in the trade does not?) to picture to him- or herself the chairs and lounges of this lobby filled to overflowing with booksellers. Not that we mean to imply that any individual bookseller will fill any individual lounge, or even chair, in quite that way, but the optimistic eye views a large attendance at the forthcoming twenty-eighth convention of the American Booksellers' Association. And it is in this lobby, for this is the Hotel Ambassador at Atlantic City, where the crowds will congregate, where persons who haven't seen each other for a twelvemonth will clasp hands, where friendships will be made and made firmer. It is thru this lobby that the bookmen and women will stroll when going to and from the business sessions, or to the busses which will carry them to the golf club and Casino, or to the pool or dance floor. It is easy indeed to see so much of the future.

But do you see yourself as one of this crowd? Are you talking in one of the groups, attending a business session, dancing with fellow-craftsmen and generally playing hookey from the routine of your business? Are you among those who are listening to the speakers (who will advance thoughts that will be valuable to all booksellers) and are exchanging ideas at the Round Tables?

Are you one of the many who have made reservations at the Hotel Ambassador (rooms with bath five dollars single, eight dollars double, or six single and ten double) so that upon leaving your friends at night

Lobby of the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City

—or early in the morning—you will have a place to recuperate in order to do it all over again the next day? Are you marking May 14th to 17th with red pencil, and will you buy a ticket to Atlantic City and not forget your convention fare certificate?

Are we going to be able to say "hello" to you in that lobby? Are you going to be with us in May? Can we depend on it?

Answer all of the questions in the affirmative at once and let us hear from you. Don't be the only bookseller in the country who doesn't attend. Think what people will say!

"The Elements of Book Collecting"

STILL the library of tools for the book collector grows by important additions. The latest volume comes from Stokes, "The Elements of Book Collecting," by Iolo A. Williams, well-known as the author of authoritative bibliographies. The volume is one for the serious collector, and, after a preface on "The Pleasures and Logic of Book Collecting," covers in succeeding chapters "The Sizes of Books," "Books Perfect and Imperfect," "Issues and Editions," "How to Describe a Book," "The Formation of a Collection," a list of books of reference.

Of the collecting of modern first editions Mr. Williams is not particularly approving. He says: "There are, at the present moment, probably more collectors of modern first editions than of any other type of book, and it can hardly be denied that this is unfortunate, for, from the point of view of the additions which it can make to our stock of useful knowledge, this form of book collecting is almost certainly the least productive of all. In so far as this collecting concerns what may be called the historical side of bibliography, the collecting and recording of the first editions of contemporary authors is all to the good, especially when attention is given to the author who has done much pamphleteering or anonymous or pseudonymous work. Yet there are many writers on whom great attention is bestowed by collectors and who are bibliographised at length and with all solemnity whose literary careers present no problems, who have never published anything except full-dress books, signed with their own names and whose publications have really nothing which the book collector or bibliographer as opposed to the ordinary literary student, is in a position specially to make use of and appreciate. Labor spent on such writers is labor wasted."

This would seem to take the ground that collecting should be for the purposes of historical research and not to give reading pleasure to the collector, tho it may be that those interested in twentieth century literature have their own private reasons for enthusiasm just as much as those who are collecting unknown poets of the eighteenth century.

The suggestions of books for reference should be especially appreciated, and begin with Lowndes' "Bibliographer's Manual of English Literature," 5 volumes, Allibone's "Critical Dictionary," 3 volumes, "Bibliotheca Britannica," 4 volumes, 1824, Evans' "American Bibliography," now again being carried forward, Milton Waldman's "Americana, Brunet's "Manuel de Libraire," 6 volumes, "A Short Title Catalogue of Books Printed in England, etc.," recently issued by the Bibliographical Society of London, "Introduction to Bibliography" by McKerrow, Oxford, just published, "The Uses of Libraries" by Baker, University of London, 1927, "The Book Collector's Guide" by de Ricci, the Rosenbach Company, 1921, "Dictionary of Anonymous and Pseudonymous English Literature" by Halkett and Laing, and other reference books briefly described as to their special usage. Among the books of general reference emphasis is laid on the "Dictionary of National Biography," soon to be supplemented happily by the "Dictionary of American Biography," coming from Scribner's this fall.

Claims Wightman Wrote "The President's Daughter"

THE sales and publicity manager for "The President's Daughter" by Nan Britton, Richard Wightman of New York, has been sued by Mrs. Wightman for alimony. In this suit she claims that Mr. Wightman wrote the book which has since achieved so much notoriety.

Hearing of the Divisible Copyright Bill

ON March 2nd the House Committee on Patents gave a hearing for the Vestal Bill, H. R. 8913, the so-called "Divisible Copyright Bill." This bill is sponsored by the chairman of the committee, Representative Albert Vestal of Anderson, Ind., who has taken a very deep interest in the progress of copyright and made himself an authority on this type of legislation and its many ramifications.

The purpose of this particular bill is one that is also included in the complete revision of the copyright code which Representative Vestal is also sponsor for, H. R. 8912, but it is a feature that is very urgently needed, and the Author's League, motion picture interests and others have been strongly urging the need of its immediate passage. The bill is one to make it possible for assignees of any literary property to have full ownership to any part of the rights which has been assigned to them and to defend that part against infringers without bringing into the suit the original copyright proprietor.

At the hearing, William Hamilton Osborne, counsel for the Authors' League, made the opening argument and was supported on the authors' side by Leroy Scott. Mr. Osborne viewed this legislation as a statement of the law which gave the author a clear right to sell what he owns, not to extend his property but to make it more easily transferable and therefore more valuable. The committee asked many questions in order to understand fully the exact purpose of this proposal. Ten of the committee members were present, including former chairman of the committee, Florian Lampert of Wisconsin, F. D. Letts of Iowa, Elbert S. Brigham of Vermont, Harry L. Englebright of California, J. Mitchell Chase of Pennsylvania, William C. Hammer of North Carolina, Mell G. Underwood of Ohio, Jeff Busby of Mississippi and William I. Sirovich of New York. Mr. Busby, a new member of the committee and a lawyer, was particularly keen about getting the legal aspects of the thing clearly outlined, and Arthur W. Weil, attorney representing the Motion Picture Industries of America and author of "Weil on Copyright," was called on by the chairman to explain the points in detail. Mr. Busby felt that the bill might be an attempt to create some new rights not existing instead of as it is, a bill to make more easily negotiable rights already in existence. F. A. Silcox of the United Typothetae reported as chairman of the conference group on copyright revision and stated that this bill was in accord with the efforts of the larger measure, which this committee has been instrumental in bringing forward.

The only opposition to the proposal was from the National Publishers' Association (periodicals), whose case was presented by Frederick S. Bigelow, associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Bigelow admitted that the present law was ineffective and clumsy and that this measure ought to be a distinct advance. He protested that authors and publishers were not at each other's throat, but that it was possible that the author might be overprotected and he felt that this proposal should be looked at with great caution for fear that it might not be sufficiently clear in its specifications as to collateral rights and as to the relations that will exist between the different owners of these rights. He pointed out that, while the periodicals at present had first rights because they were first publishers and could therefore control the time of republication in book and other forms, under this proposal the book publisher or motion picture house could go ahead and use their privileges without waiting for magazine use. Members of the committee kept Mr. Bigelow in long cross examination, and afterwards Louis Swarts of the Motion Picture Industries stated that assignees today withheld from using their rights as early as they wished because of contracts, not because they were restrained by any feature of the present copyright law whose change Frederick Bigelow seemed to fear.

R. R. Bowker, speaking for the general public and in the interest of copyright progress, spoke as one who had been connected with copyright discussion for forty years. He expressed the hope that this progressive step could be taken. He gave clear definitions of the real meaning of the phrases in the bill which were appreciated by the committee. Frederic Melcher of the Copyright Committee of the National Association of Book Publishers, and William H. Briggs of Harper & Brothers expressed the approval of the publishers and offered a minor amendment which was approved by other petitioners and which made it necessary instead of permissible for the judge, in the case of any suit for infringement, to notify all other assignees of record.

The next copyright hearing will be on March 12th and 13th, and will take up the bill which covers mechanical music. This bill, introduced in the House as H. R. 10655, will be first discussed by the Senate and afterwards introduced by Senator Medcalf as 53160. Under the present code the composer must accept 2 cents per disc or per roll for reproduction of his work, and any manufacturer may use the music. The new proposal would give the composer the right to trade for the original contract fee, which, in the case of successful composers, would probably mean an increase over the 2 cents. After the contract is made, it must be filed within ten days in Washington, and other makers of discs or rolls can duplicate that contract if they desire. There are detailed provisions for carrying out an arrangement of this kind.

When Department Stores Joined the A. B. A.

"I NOTICED that in your obituary notice of Walter Lewis you mentioned the fact that he had much to do with bringing the Department Store group into the Booksellers' Association," writes Vernon Schneck of H. R. Hunting & Co. "There is a bit of interesting history back of that. You will recall that for a number of years in the early days of the Association, we had no Department Store members. I felt very strongly that if the A. B. A. was ever to become an important force in the booktrade, we should have the cooperation of the Department Store Buyers, and when appointed Chairman of the Program Committee in 1909, my first proposition to the Committee was that we make some effort to secure a paper from a representative department store man. The Committee agreed with me and I immediately started an inquiry among travelers as to the man, who, in character and experience, would be the best representative of the Department Store group. I had numerous suggestions, but practically every man included Walter Lewis in his list. I had never seen Mr. Lewis, but wrote him a letter advising him of what I had in mind and asking him to prepare a paper on the 'relation of the Department Store to the book trade.'

He wrote back, declining to undertake the preparation of such a paper. I immediately wrote him again, urging the importance of the whole matter and asking him to reconsider his decision. He did not immediately reply, and I took a rather unfair advantage of his silence and sent the program to the printers with his paper included, writing him at the same time that I had taken 'silence for consent,' and inasmuch as the time was getting short, I had taken the liberty of announcing that he would prepare such a paper. With characteristic good nature, he wrote me that under the circumstances he would be at the convention, and I have never forgotten his introductory words when he came to the platform. He said, 'My department store friends have advised me that I had best have an ambulance waiting for me at the hotel entrance, but one glance over this audience convinces me that I am in the house of friends.'

His interested, active participation in the convention program proved a very happy event, and at my suggestion he was immediately placed on the membership committee and urged to undertake a campaign for membership among the Department Store buyers.

The results of that effort are now history, and the American Booksellers owe a great debt to Walter Lewis for the efforts he made in its behalf.

ARE royalties received from the lease of a patent, or, by inference, from the sales of a book protected by copyright, taxable under a State income tax?

The question is being argued before the Supreme Court of the United States, at least as far as the royalties on patents are concerned. But there is no essential difference (so the Income Tax office has held) between the money received from patents and from copyrights; the unjust decision that copyright royalties are "income" of the "unearned" variety, while literary work done on contract or salary is "earned" is still fresh in the minds of all those who deal in books or manuscripts. Hence the Supreme Court tax argument is of intense interest to the book world, since its results will doubtless be used in bringing the royalty-on-books-matter to the Supreme Court in the future.

The case in question is that of Long, Petitioner, vs. Rockwood, on writ of certiorari to the Superior Court of Massachusetts. The petitioner contends that all that a patentee obtains by his patents is the right to exclude others from its use, manufacture or sale, and that no Federal purpose behind the patent laws, and no right to exclude others from the use of his patent, is hampered in any way by State taxation of the income derived from the patent.

The respondent contends that operating under a patent, a patentee is using a Federal agency and is thus excluded from State taxation of the results of such operation; in other words, that the Federal purpose was to secure the results to the patentee, and hold him secure in them, and that the States cannot interfere in any way in that right.

The State, it is contended, has not the right to impair the rights given by all the States.

If the word "copyright" is substituted for the word "patent" in the above, it may easily be seen that a much greater case and cause may come before the Supreme Court should that tribunal hold that the States have no right to tax the income received from a patent.

Mechanical Music

A bill to revise Section 1, Subsection E of the present copyright code was introduced February 7th by Congressman Vestal. This is the section that has to do with the public performance of music thru mechanical reproduction. Under the present code, adopted in 1909, the composer or publisher of the musical work is obliged to accept an arrangement by which any maker of phonograph discs or mechanical music rolls can reproduce any pieces of music as long as 2 cents per disc or per roll is paid. This gives the composer or his publisher no right by trading to set the value of his property or to get more for some composers than for others. This new proposal would give the composer the right to make contracts by trading for the privilege, but it curtails this right by making it necessary when such contract has been made and the contract filed in the Copyright Office that other producers of discs or rolls can reproduce the same music at the same price. This might be called a compromise measure, but would put the composer in a better position than he is today. The same bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Moses as S 3160. The House bill will be given a hearing on March 2nd at the same time that the so-called "Divisibility Copyright Bill," H. R. 10655, will be argued.

Book Purchasing

The purchase of books and periodicals for various government departments will be done by a special committee known as Sub-Committee I. V. under the Federal Purchasing board. This Board was created to form policies and plans, uniting the purchasing activities of several departments into the Federal Business Association, safeguarding the interest of the government and at the same time promoting confidence among business interests doing business with the government. After investigation and study, a single Committee on Commodities was formed which consists only of members of the Federal Purchasing Board, this Committee dividing itself into eight sub-committees, of which books and periodicals fall under Number 4.

The Federal Trade Commission has issued a long and involved announcement regarding the suppression of competition in price in the sale of photo-engraving products. This order has been served upon 231 respondents of the Photo-Engraving Association and its various member clubs.

Postal Committee to Consider Book Bill

It is expected that the Senate Committee on Postal Affairs will give a hearing to the book bill which was presented before the House Committee last week. In the Senate the bill is in charge of Senator Copeland of New York.

The Shipstead Bill

Will legislation intended to eliminate injunctions against union strikes affect the owners of copyright? Such might well be the case in the opinion of lawyers for the American Patent Law Association before the Senate Committee on Judiciary which has been considering the Shipstead Bill (S. 1482). The bill would restrict the powers of equity courts in the issuance of injunctions to cases in which there is no remedy at law and where tangible and transferrable property is involved.

The American Patent Law Association requested that if the committee decides to report out the bill it be amended to apply to cases where there is no "adequate" remedy at law, and that other amendments be added to provide that it shall not be construed as a repeal of existing statutes giving equity courts the power to issue injunctions in cases involving patents, copyrights, and trade-marks.

Mr. Fenning read a letter from the New York Patent Law Association saying that the bill if enacted would "substantially destroy" rights in patents, copyrights, and similar property.

In this letter objection was made to the provision to limit injunctions to cases in which there is no remedy at law instead of cases in which there is no adequate remedy at law.

Answering the question asked by Senator Norris, Mr. Fenning said the enactment of the Shipstead bill would prevent courts from issuing any injunction in patent infringement cases because there is a remedy at law, tho an inadequate one, and because the Supreme Court has held that copyrights and patent rights are not tangible.

Parcel Post to Austria

Arrangements have been completed by the Post Office Department for a reciprocal agreement between the United States and Austria for the exchange of parcel post mails.

The agreement became effective March 1, 1928.

The Golden Book Reading Club

HENRY W. LANIER, organizer and editor of the Golden Book Magazine, one of the interesting successes in magazine publishing in recent years, has planned a new kind of reading service for his subscribers which is to be called "The Golden Book Reading Club."

Mr. Lanier, whose editorial experience began with Scribner's Magazine in 1894 and who was secretary of Doubleday, Page & Co. for over fourteen years, has found in his magazine a way to make the literature of past decades widely available to readers today and believes that thru this mailing list the general interest in reading books can be increased. This reading service is to be offered without extra charge to those who will take a three years' subscription to The Golden Book. Membership will include a reading course prepared under the supervision of Levering Tyson of the Columbia University Extension Bureau and a bulletin from Mr. Lanier once a month carrying reading recommendations. The first bulletin says:

"The whole aim of this effort is to help the reader get all that belongs to him in the world of books, new and old. Every time one reads a real book with enthusiasm there is bound to be a growth of one's comprehension and nature. That makes life richer." Each month's letter includes first Mr. Lanier's own selection among fiction, then of non-fiction, and then a recommendation from among the great books of the past. The postscript says: "Your bookseller should have all these volumes in stock, but, if not, the club will mail them, always at the published price." The Club service also intends to offer a list of publishers' remainders every six months.

Ibsen's Hundredth Anniversary

HENDRIK IBSEN was born on March 20, 1828. On March 20, 1928, his hundredth anniversary will be celebrated all over the world. For if Ibsen is no longer the talk of the drawing room hour, it is because he has definitely settled himself on the immortals' hill. He is no longer the rage but he will never be forgotten.

In an article in Theatre Arts Monthly for March, Montrose Moses, discussing Ibsen one hundred years after, assures Ibsen of this permanency. "Yet," he writes, "our little man from Skien, on his hundredth birthday, might take this to heart—that in a world of changing potencies, he and Wagner will stand as the most fought over artists of their time, setting the world agog by the inroads they made upon the accustomed habits of the theatre and of art. Statues might be raised to their honor, but greater still to their immortality the words Ibsenite and Wagnerite. These words demand all of nothing. Either one was a complete Ibsenite or didn't belong. So the world thought when conventional, conservative, aristocratic Ibsen was young."

The centennial celebrations in Norway will have their effect on the rest of the world, for various countries are sending delegates to represent them in the Norwegian festivities and planning special Ibsen performances to carry on their acknowledgment of the playwright at home. Robert Underwood Johnson, as has been announced, is representing the United States. Numerous little theaters thruout the country have announced special Ibsen programs and the professional theater has also responded, Eva Le Gallienne having selected "The Master Builder" and "John Gabriel Borkman" to be played at the Civic Repertory Theater on the twentieth.

One of the most interesting of the publishing activities growing out of this anniversary is the centenary edition of the complete works of Ibsen which the Norwegian Gyldendal Publishing Company (Gyldendal Norsk Forlag) at Oslo is undertaking. This will be a matter of twenty volumes, four or five of which will be issued each year. The editors of the edition will be Professors Francis Bull, Halvdan Koht and Didrik Arup, and they will include all of Ibsen's work, prose and poetry, his letters and a volume of pictures. The text will of course be in Norwegian.

The heightened interest in Ibsen will bring his books into more prominence at this time and a list of his plays might not be unwelcome in an available and handy form. The following list is made up from Bessie Graham's entry of different publishers' editions of Ibsen in "The Bookman's Manual." Since there are editions published by Scribner, Dutton, Modern Library, Appleton, Baker, Luce and Putnam, this list omits publishers.

"Lady Inger," 1855; "Feast at Solhoug," 1856; "Vikings," 1861; "Love's Comedy," 1862; "Pretenders," 1864; "Brand," 1866; "Peer Gynt," 1867; "League of Youth," 1869; "Emperor and Galilean," 1873; "Pillars of Society," 1877; "A Doll's House," 1879; "Ghosts," 1881; "An Enemy of the People," 1882; "Wild Duck," 1884; "Rosmersholm," 1886; "The Lady From the Sea," 1888; "Hedda Gabler," 1890; "The Master Builder," 1892; "Little Eyolf," 1894; "John Gabriel Borkman," 1896; "When We Dead Awaken," 1900.

In the Bookmarket

DU BOSE HEYWARD, between Bermuda and his new home in North Carolina, spent one day in New York last week. Doubleday, Doran gave a tea in his honor at the Ambassador. Mr. Heyward is to have a new novel in the fall, probably in October, which is to appear serially first in the Woman's Home Companion. It is called "Mamba's Daughters." The dramatization of his book, "Porgy," which Mr. Heyward made with his wife, Dorothy Heyward, is still playing in New York and has been published in book form by Doubleday, Doran. ❀ ❀ ❀

Alfred Aloysius Horn, better known as Trader Horn, will arrive in this country on the Olympic on March 13th to visit the many friends his book has made for him in America. He will lecture in New York and vicinity and will be the guest of honor at the Literary Guild's first anniversary celebration on March 14th. In the meantime his book, published by Simon & Schuster, sells on and on. ❀ ❀ ❀

Contracts have just been signed, the publishers announce, between Rear-Admiral Thomas P. Macgruder of the United States Navy and Dorrance & Company, for the publication of a work on the American Navy, as it is and as it should be. New, important material is being gathered and prepared by the fighting admiral while "awaiting orders" in Washington, and it is probable that his book will appear while Congress is still in session. ❀ ❀ ❀

John Erskine, who recently gave his last lecture at Columbia University before taking a long leave of absence, has been elected President of the Juillard School of Music. In his student days Erskine studied music at Columbia with Edward MacDowell and composed songs and hymns, one of the latter having found a place in the Episcopal hymn book. He never lost his interest in music, even tho in addition to his teaching he was creating such books as "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," and "Galahad," both published by Bobbs-Merrill. This year he appeared in Ann Arbor and

Buffalo as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra. Professor Erskine has been active in the affairs of the Juillard Foundation for several years. ❀ ❀ ❀

Reilly & Lee have published a first novel by Mary Boyle O'Reilly, daughter of the historic Irish patriot and poet, John Boyle O'Reilly. It is "The Black Fan," and is a romantic tale of court intrigue based on events which led up to the assassination of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand. ❀ ❀ ❀

"Black Valley," the novel by Hugo Wast which was awarded the Royal Spanish Academy Prize and which is published by Longmans, Green was the subject of Dr. J. Carter Troop's weekly lecture last week at the Hotel Majestic. ❀ ❀ ❀

T. P. O'Connor, "father of the House of Commons," arrived in this country last month for a short visit. Discussing America he said: "America is marching in front today in literature. There is no denying her that position. It is all very well to talk against it and rave against it. Protest as vehemently as we wish, the fact is that you people today have produced the greatest books." ❀ ❀ ❀

A. A. Knopf regretfully informs us that G. B. Stern will not be able to come to this country as she had planned. Miss Stern's new novel, "Debonair," will appear March 30th. ❀ ❀ ❀

Stokes have just issued the second volume in their series "Mirrors of the year," edited by Horace Stokes, a book that interprets the twelve months of 1927 from the point of view of very distinguished contributors. The booktrade will find more special interest in the chapter on "The Great American Novel" by Edith Wharton, "Some Books of 1927" by William Lyon Phelps, and "Critique of Criticism" by Louis Bromfield. The article by Professor Phelps gives compact comment on the books that seem to him to be outstanding among the year's product. "The finest American novel in 1927," he writes, "is 'The Bridge of San Luis Rey' by Thornton Wilder. This young man has apparently seen more of the world and human nature in thirty years than many will see in eighty." ❀ ❀ ❀

There are oftentimes little books that slip quietly into general circulation and by word-of-mouth advertising gradually attain an important place on a publisher's list. Such a volume is "The Prophet" by Gilbran on the Knopf list, a little book of wisdom. The first year 1,300 copies were sold; the second, 2,500; and now the total sale has reached 25,000. In order that the growing public might have this book in just the form it most approved, three different sets of plates have been made, in different sizes and typographical plan, an unusual investment but one that has apparently had a marked effect on broadening and stabilizing the demand for the book. ❀ ❀ ❀

The Atlantic Bookshelf, which for the past few years has been gathering up the book advertisements of the Atlantic Monthly and relaying them, with accompanying articles, to the booktrade, is, with the March issue, changing the Bookshelf to a paid magazine with subscriptions at $1.00 per year. This issue contains articles on "Books as Merchandise," by Earnest Elmo Calkins; "How Necessary Is the American Library?" by George H. Locke; "Advertising a Given Book," by Richard L. Simon, and "A Profile of Richard F. Fuller." ❀ ❀ ❀

Emil Ludwig on his recent visit to the White House confided in President Coolidge that he had decided to write a life of Abraham Lincoln. It is said that Mr. Coolidge contributed to Herr Ludwig's data some anecdotes not of common knowledge concerning Lincoln's occupancy of the White House. The author hopes to complete his book in time for publication next year.

The Fifty Books Exhibit

THE selection of the Fifty Books of the past year, chosen on account of the excellence of their production, will be made by the jury of the American Institute of Graphic Arts after the closing of entries on March 20th. Books may be sent at any time to the Fifty Books Committee of the American Institute of Graphic Arts, 65 East Fifty-sixth Street, New York. Any book manufactured for sale or private distribution but not for advertising distribution is eligible, books manufactured between March 1st, 1927, and March 1st, 1928. There is no restriction as to the character of the book, its list price or illustrations, binding or any feature. Publishers should select from their lists only those items which most nearly express their conception of well-made books, as the selection is limited to fifty, and the merit of the books will have to be carefully weighed. A jury of three, as in former years, makes the final decision. These books will be simultaneously exhibited in May at the Grolier Club, New York, and at the New York Public Library, and then will, in duplicate, go on tour over the United States, being shown with lectures, slides and catalogs in forty cities. This exhibit has an important influence on the rapidly growing interest in finely made books in this country.

A Series of Book Exhibits

THE booktrade has now had considerable experience in book exhibits, often conducted with great success by department stores, with the whole city cooperating. The preparation of material for such exhibits is extremely difficult. Might it not be possible next fall for a series of such exhibits to be planned in cities where they are especially needed to arouse book interest? The material prepared by publishers, if routed from one city to another in the course of six or eight weeks could have a very great effect and the publishers and authors thus would be repaid for the pains taken. Booksellers, librarians and teachers of English have a common interest in such methods of increasing the attention to books.

Chicago Lectures on Mechanics of Publishing

A COURSE in "The Mechanics of Publishing" is being conducted at The Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, Chicago, Illinois, by William A. Kittredge, Director of Design and Typography, R. R. Donnelley & Sons, The Lakeside Press. This course comprises fifteen lectures and laboratory demonstrations on the subjects of typography, photo-engraving, paper making, color, printing inks, and costs. During the course, trips are made to various industrial plants, where actual work is observed. The students are made acquainted with modern practices, and the best underlined principles in relation to the application of the mechanics of publishing. The fee is $25.00.

Books for Schools

AN interesting and thoroughgoing study of children's reading compiled at Johns Hopkins University has been made available by the Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore. The list emphasizes the need of pupils forming not only a correct taste for books but a skill in using available library resources. In making the lists of books, comparative studies were made of several library lists of recognized value, including that of Terman and Lima, the Winnetka list, Wilson's children's catalog, the A. L. A. graded list, etc. By such method a cross section of the available books can be found and the common denominator of book selection for grade schools can be discovered.

It is rather interesting to note on how few books all of the authorities agree. For instance, in the sixth grade of the six lists studied only six books were put on each list. Those six were "Little Men," "Little Women," "Hoosier School Boy," "Peterkin Papers," "Treasure Island," and "Gulliver's Travels." In the fifth grade only one book got unanimous decision, that book being the "Just So Stories." In the fourth grade there was no unanimity, and in the third grade one book, "Aesop's Fables," was unanimously agreed on; in the second grade, two books, "Brownies Abroad" and "Child's Garden of Verse."

BOOK EXHIBITS AT COLLEGE

University of New Hampshire
Durham, N. H.

February 6, 1928.

Editor, Publishers' Weekly:

I have read with interest the article by Professor Millet of the University of Chicago on "The College Student's Books." It seems to me he has left out of consideration one of the most important elements in the situation. Surely the college or university library is to be reckoned with if it is doing its task well. Some college libraries such as Dartmouth hold exhibits of students' copies of rare books. Other colleges such as Harvard with its Farnsworth Room have special rooms in their libraries for general and miscellaneous reading of a specially selected collection of books. Other libraries hold exhibits of their own copies of rare books, of books of current interest, of the classics, of books on bibliography, etc. This library holds such exhibits changing them weekly, publishes a book-review periodical, The Library Lantern, a copy of which is enclosed, publishes articles in the students' weekly, The New Hampshire, posts lists of new books in the classroom buildings, etc. The library also loans deposit libraries to fraternities.

These things are done that the students may acquire a love for the reading of good books and that sooner or later they may begin to acquire and cherish books of their own. In so doing the library feels that it is a factor in preparing the student for life.

WILLARD P. LEWIS, Librarian.

STOKES' ATTITUDE TO THE BOOK RETAILER

Frederick A. Stokes Company
New York, February 15, 1928

Editor, Publishers' Weekly:

The excellent Boni and Liveright letter in the current Weekly leads Mr. Stokes and myself to feel that you will be interested in seeing the attached leaflet which for some time we have been distributing thru our salesmen to the booktrade. It sums up this Company's feeling about publisher-bookseller relations as succinctly as was in our power.

Sincerely yours,

EMILY P. STREET,
Promotion Manager.

"The Stokes Company believes that the book retailer is the logical and most effective distributor for its publications and that he should be encouraged and protected, for the good of the business in general. In all its advertising and circularization the Company uses its best efforts to make sales through the retailer and not directly. The Company is constantly refusing inducements for the use of its books as premiums at cut prices. The Company has always been and is at present strongly opposed to all price-cutting methods of distribution including those of the Literary Guild, and does all in its power to discountenance them. In general, the Company has always believed in and constantly practiced full cooperation with booksellers. The Company was sympathetic with and active in the organization of the American Booksellers' Association. It has repeatedly been of service at critical times to important bookselling houses of the country. The Company feels that it deserves active support of its policies."

A WARNING

Aldine Book Shop

222 S. 17th Street, Philadelphia

March 1, 1928.

Editor Publishers' Weekly,

Thru the pages of your journal we wish to warn other retail booksellers against a Lawrence C. Darby, of Portland, Maine. He seems to be traveling about the country.

He came into our store and made a purchase, tendering a check drawn on the Chapman National Bank of Portland. He had various papers of identification, including an automobile driver's license (Maine) for 1928.

The bank mentioned above states that they have no account with any such individual. The man's performance is very plausible and convincing, he knows books, and has apparently traveled extensively—presumably on other people's money.

We hope that our warning will save others from being similarly swindled.

W. C. BROWN.

LOOK FOR THESE STOLEN BOOKS

The Centaur Book Shop

1224 Chancellor Street, Philadelphia

March 2, 1928.

Editor Publisher's Weekly:

We should like you to insert a note in the Publishers' Weekly, if you find it convenient to do so, stating that we have had stolen from our shelves this week the following:

Joseph Conrad, "Under Western Eyes."

Joseph Conrad, "Youth."

Robert Louis Stevenson, "Catriona."

"Three Heroines of New England Romance," containing a contribution by Louise Imogen Guiney.

The Conrad items were priced at $55 and $32.50, respectively; the Stevenson at $14.50, and the Guiney at $5.

HAROLD T. MASON.

Obituary Notes

ROBERT A. SKEEL

ROBERT ARCHIBALD SKEEL, manager of the San Francisco Branch of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, died on January 6th at the age of fifty years. He was born in Illinois in 1878 and after attending grammar schools took special work at the University of Southern California. He early became interested in the book business and in 1925 was selected as Manager of the San Francisco Depository. He was greatly respected there both as a person and for his excellent management of the branch. He was married to Miss Mari Hagen on October 1, 1927. Already suffering from the early stages of his ailment he nevertheless went to Philadelphia for the Conference of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. He died in the Methodist Hospital.

INA DONNA COOLBRITH

INA DONNA COOLBRITH, poet laureate of California, died in Berkeley, California, on February 29th, at the age of 85. She was born, of Puritan stock, in Illinois and moved to California seventy-five years ago. She was last of the coterie of early San Francisco writers which included Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Charles Warren Stoddard and Joaquin Miller. She was the only woman ever to be elected to membership in the Bohemian Club in San Francisco, and was made poet laureate of California by act of the State Government in 1915. She was the author of "A Perfect Day and Other Poems," "The Singer of the Sea" and "Songs from the Golden Gate."

DR. F. A. MARCH, JR.

DR. FRANCIS A. MARCH, JR., noted philologist, died on February 28th in Easton, Pa. He was 65 years old, having been born in Easton on March 2, 1863. He was connected with the English Department of Lafayette College from 1884 until the time of his death, as Associate Professor of Modern Languages, Professor of English Literature and as Professor of English Language. Dr. March was assistant in the etymological department of the Century Dictionary and editor in chief of the Thesaurus Dictionary. He contributed to many philological journals.

Personal

FRANK C. DODD, of Dodd, Mead & Co., has sailed for England on his usual spring trip.

JOHN BARNES PRATT, head of A. S. Barnes & Co. of New York, has left for Europe with Mrs. Pratt.

BLANCHE W. KNOPF (Mrs. Alfred A. Knopf) is recovering from an operation for appendicitis performed some days ago in a New York hospital. Mrs. Knopf, who is vice-president of Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., expects to return to her desk by the middle of this month.

ROGER L. SCAIFE of Houghton Mifflin Company has just left Boston for six weeks abroad during which he will renew relations with many of the authors whose books are published in America by Houghton Mifflin. Among those whom Mr. Scaife expects to see are Georges Clemenceau, Viscount Grey of Fallodon, John Buchan, Anne Douglas Sedgwick, Rafael Sabatini, Denis Mackail, Harold Nicolson, Valentine Williams, and John Drinkwater.

The Weekly Record of New Publications

THIS list aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publications. Pamphlets will be included only if of special value. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request, in which case word "apply" is used. When not specified the binding is "cloth."

Imprint date or best available date, preferably copyright date in bracket, is always stated, except when imprint date and copyright date agree and are of the current year, in which case only "c" is used. No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n.d.].

Sizes are indicated as follows: F (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q (4to: under 30 cm.); O (8vo: 25 cm.); D (12mo: 20 cm.); S (16mo: 17½ cm.); T (24mo: 15 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

The Field of Old and Rare Books and Weekly Book Exchange

CURRENT RARE BOOK NOTES

Frederick M. Hopkins

JOHAN C. ECKEL has been writing at length to prove that general interest in collecting is centered on modern first editions, and that lines heretofore popular are either stationary or slipping. The widespread interest among collectors, in the Old World and the New, cannot be denied. Current auction catalogs and booksellers' catalogs prove it. But we believe just as good a case could be made out for autographic material. The prices which autograph letters, documents and manuscripts have been bringing have been furnishing fresh sensations almost every week. And the high prices have not been limited to autographic material of Button Gwinnett, Dr. Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Joseph Conrad, Rudyard Kipling and Robert Louis Stevenson. Autographic material of every description, documents, letters and manuscripts, of minor poets, novelists, statesmen, have all been raised to a new price level, and some of the prices now being realized for this grade of material is astonishing. And one thing can be said for this line is that the printing presses cannot flood the market. The limit is real and is constantly sending prices higher.

GEOGRAPHICAL maps of American interest of the periods of discovery, colonization, and of the Revolution, duplicates from the William L. Clements Library, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich., together with important books on American history, were sold at the Anderson Galleries, February 28, 287 lots bringing $5,155.50. A fine colored map of the world, Amsterdam by Pieter Goos, 1667, in which the Great Lakes are represented as one great lake, brought $95; a fine copy of Waldseemuller's "Orbis Typus Universalis of 1513, considered by Henry Stevens and others to be the most important edition of the Ptolemies, $175; Del'Isle's fine colored map of Canada, 1703, $100; the fine colored map of America, by Blaeuw, Amsterdam, 1648, $275; Sauthier's map of the Battle of White Plains, the earliest of three known states, London, 1777, $130; "Ratzer's map of and view of New York City, London, 1776, $200; and New Jersey Acts of the General Assembly, Burlington, 1776, $140.

FROM London comes the news of an important manuscript of American interest to be sold at Sotheby's on April 22-24. It is the manuscript of William Strachey's "Historie of Travel Into Virginia Britania." Strachey was a member of the expedition which founded Virginia in 1609; and only two copies of his book are known to exist. One is in the British Museum; and the other, in the Bodleian Library. The manuscript written in 1612 is the most important item in a collection which Lord Leconfield is dispersing, largely from the library of his ancestor, the Earl of Northumberland. Several other manuscripts, together with 29 books printed before 1640, all of which deal directly with early American history will be sold. The report also comes from London that "Dr. Rosenbach will head a notable rush of trans-Atlantic bidders" on this noteworthy occasion.

ALFRID W. POLLARD, of the British Museum, contributes to the London Times, news of the discovery of an earlier piece of printing by Caxton in England than any heretofore known. The first date hitherto assigned was November 18, 1477. It now appears that on December 13, 1476, Caxton printed at Westminster a papal indulgence to Henry Langley and his wife. Mr. Pollard points out the significance of this discovery. It shows that Caxton brought with him to England the type which he had already used at Bruges, at any rate, his punches and matrices. This earlier printing, by nearly a year, exhibits two fonts of type. He also traces the successive use of Caxton's so called "third type." He notes that it appeared in Caxton's advertisement of his business, inviting patrons to "come to Westmonester into the almonesrye at the reed pale and he shall have them good chepe."

THE Caxton Club is about to issue "Tales for Bibliophiles, translated from the French," by Theodore W. Koch, in a limited edition of 300 copies, printed from type at the Cuneo Press. The volume contains "The Bibliomaniac," by Charles Nodier; "The French Pastry-Cook," by Alexandre Dumas, père; "A Copy of Hennepin," by Charles Basset; "The Bibliophile's Hell," by Charles Asselineau; "Letters on the Bibliophiles," by George Duhamel, together with a general preface, forewords and notes by Mr. Koch. Supplementing this volume, altho in a very different format, Mr. Koch is printing, his translation of Gustave Flaubert's youthful tale of "Bibliomania," the story of the Spanish monk who stopped at neither theft, arson or murder to enrich his collection of rarities. The brochure is being printed by F. Paillart, Abbeville, France, on Arches paper.

ONE of the finest collections of marine prints in the world, owned by A. G. H. Macpherson, containing 11,382 items exclusive of the large section of atlases and sea charts, may come to New York. It is said that there has been nothing else in all history which even approaches it in importance. The Society of Nautical Research of London has a six months' option which expires in April. An effort, aided by all the shipping and yachting societies, has been made to retain the collection in England, but success is not yet in sight. Mr. Macpherson is a retired Calcutta bill broker whose hobby has been this great collection, and who is anxious to have it retained in England. It has proved to be so fascinating a hobby that he has sunk his private fortune in the collection, and as he has surpassed all previous endeavors in this field he is attempting now to turn his collection into cash. He has offered it to the Society of Nautical Research at £90,000, or £30,000 less than his appraisal. He feels that this contribution on his part toward keeping the collection in his own country ought to interest his countrymen.

GOODSPEED'S BOOK SHOP of Boston has been carrying display advertising in Boston papers that they will pay:

$10,000 for "Tamerlane," Boston, 1827.

$1,500 for "Fanshawe," Boston, 1828.

$600 for "Leaves of Grass," Brooklyn, 1855.
